Practice Areas: Locke Bell is a partner in the firm's Government Contracts & Public Procurement practice. Locke is a recognized authority on intellectual property in government contracting, which he teaches as an adjunct professor at the George Washington University Law School. Locke is a trusted counselor, litigator, and strategic partner to technology-driven clients as they engage with the U.S. government and others in the complex landscape of public procurement, grants, and government-sponsored initiatives, including nontraditional acquisition methods such as other transaction agreements (OTs or OTAs), cooperative research and development agreements (CRADAs), and the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) programs. He represents clients across all industries, including aerospace and defense, commercial software and information technology, and healthcare, pharmaceuticals, and biotechnology, on issues that arise throughout the full lifecycle of engagement with federal, state, and local governments. As a litigator, Locke represents clients in data rights challenges and claims related to patent and copyright infringement, trade secrets misappropriation, and reverse-FOIA disputes, as well as complex contract claims, bid protest, and civil fraud and qui tam actions under the False Claims Act. Locke also regularly advises clients on government contracting issues in transactional matters, having guided large and small businesses, private equity firms, and entrepreneurs through more than a hundred mergers and acquisitions. He is a skilled negotiator of commercial and noncommercial licensing agreements, contracts and subcontracts, and teaming agreements, and he is intimately familiar with selling commercial software and other products through the GSA Federal Supply Schedules and other government-wide acquisition vehicles, such as NASA SEWP and DoD ESI, having acted in an in-house capacity on secondment to a large, publicly traded commercial software company. Locke has been recognized as a Rising Star by Law360 and the National Law Journal. Locke is also involved in the American Bar Association, where he formerly served as co-chair for the Intellectual Property Committee of the Section of Public Contract Law. Locke holds a B.S. in mechanical engineering from the University of Virginia and previously worked at the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office as a patent examiner, specializing in mechanical arts. He earned his J.D. with honors from the George Washington University Law School, where he received the Patricia A. Tobin Government Contracts Award for excellence in government contracts law. Locke also clerked for Judge Mary Ellen Coster Williams at the Court of Federal Claims.

He frequently counsels clients with crisis management and government affairs strategies to navigate legal, regulatory and reputational challenges. Mr. Beshara has a decade of experience litigating government contracts in Federal Court on behalf of leading US defense contractors and has been "instrumental" in guiding clients through high-stakes Federal investigations and Congressional hearings. In 2022, Law360 profiled Mr. Beshara as one of only five "Rising Star" attorneys nationwide in government contracts, showcasing how Mr. Beshara "successfully delivered oral arguments in [Federal] court" on behalf of a global engineering company in the successful defense of an $82 Billion contract awarded by the Department of Defense in 2019 – with the favorable decision affirmed by the US Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. The publication also highlighted Mr. Beshara's work on successfully overturning a $650 Million NASA contract for the International Space Station and asteroid detection awarded to a client's competitor, resulting in a landmark decision based on novel procurement integrity arguments. These and other successes achieved for government contractors in bid protests over the past 10 years have served as the bedrock of Mr. Beshara's litigation practice. Mr. Beshara's investigation work has included Congressional and Federal agency inquiries, as well as confidential internal-company investigations. Recently, Mr. Beshara helped lead the preparation of a CEO through multiple rounds of televised House and Senate hearings that were favorably received by legislators and staff. Mr. Beshara has cultivated what has been described as a truly "Washington practice," sought after for his political acumen and strong bipartisan relationships on Capitol Hill and in the Executive Branch. For the past half-decade he has led a national trade association's engagement with the Department of Treasury and the Senate Banking & House Financial Services Committees on evolving Anti-Money Laundering (AML) issues, worked directly with Congressional Judiciary Committees on copyright reform, and served as a primary public policy counsel to a leading telecommunications company.

Career: Prior to joining private practice, Mr. Beshara worked for a bipartisan group of policymakers at various levels of government. He served in the US House of Representatives as a congressional aide to Congressman Tim Ryan (D-OH) and worked in the office of the late US Senator George V. Voinovich (R-OH) and for former Ohio Senate Majority Leader Jimmy Stewart (R-OH).

Professional Memberships: Mr. Beshara is a Truman National Security Scholar, certified by the Truman National Security Institute's congressional leadership development program on defense, foreign policy and national security issues. A proud first-generation college graduate, Mr. Beshara serves as a board member on Georgetown Law's Recent Alumni Advisory Council, through which he advises on the trajectory of Georgetown Law for the next generation. Among other activities, Mr. Beshara was elected as a member of the American Task Force for Lebanon – an organization of American business and government leaders of Lebanese heritage working on security and prosperity through strengthened US-Lebanon relations.

richard.blau@gray-robinson.com

Featured in Cannabis Law (USA – Nationwide), Food & Beverages (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Alcohol Beverage Cannabis Industry Residential, Resort and Club, Restaurant Litigation Food Law Hospitality International

Career: Richard presides over Gray-Robinson's regulated products practice and oversees the firm's legal guidance, compliance, and support services for the alcohol beverage, cannabis, food, and tobacco products industries. Richard and his colleagues focus on the rules, regulations, and business practices that govern the marketing, sale, and consumption of distilled spirits, wine, beer and other licensed beverages. As a trial lawyer with over 20 years of experience, Richard has litigated jury and bench trials in state and federal courts. In the area of alcohol beverage regulation, he successfully litigated on behalf of manufacturers, setting important precedents for the industry in Geary Distributing Co. v. All Brand Importers, Inc. (imposing constitutional limits on the application of a state beer franchise law) and in Jim Taylor Corp. v. Guinness Import Co. (defining "brand extension" under Florida law). Richard works with all three tiers of the alcohol beverage industry. He has represented international importers and domestic manufacturers, statewide wholesaler trade groups and regional distributors, and retailers (including multistate restaurant and hotel chains) across the United States. Richard and the firm's Alcohol Industry Team service retail licensees in a variety of ways, including liquor, tobacco and lottery licensing; health and food service inspection compliance; responsible vendor and employee training; representation in administrative proceedings; and litigation/dispute resolution. Richard also works closely with representatives of state and federal government, drafting administrative rules and proposed legislation—both on behalf of clients and at the request of regulators. For example, he prepared an administrative regulation and statutory amendment at the request of the Florida Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco, to codify the impact of a judicial decision that he successfully obtained on behalf of a client. He has testified before governmental bodies, such as the New York State Assembly, regarding alcohol laws and related issues. Richard counseled legislators of Hawaii on the effects of the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark decision in Granholm v. Heald and recently testified before legislative committees of both the Florida Senate and the House of Representatives regarding issues relating to the direct shipment of wine. For over a decade, Richard annually has edited the nationwide Survey of Reported Judicial Decisions Addressing the 21st Amendment and Related Alcohol Laws for the American Bar Association and the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators. Since 1998, he also has authored the chapter "Beverage Alcohol Practice" for the annual Developments in Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice published by the American Bar Association. Other publications by Richard include a chapter titled "The Role of the Food and Beverage Attorney" for the anthology Best Practices for Alcohol Beverage, Food and Drug Law, which was published by Aspatore Books; an article co-authored with U.S. Sen. Connie Mack (R-Fla.) titled "The Need for Fair Play: Repealing the Federal Baseball Antitrust Exemption," which was published by the Florida Law Review of the University of Florida's College of Law; a paper, "The Competency and Credibility of Children as Witnesses," which was delivered to the World Conference on Police Psychology at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia; and

"Speedy Trial: Pre-accusation Delay, Post-accusation Delay, and the Speedy Trial Act of 1975," which was published in the Georgetown Law Journal. Articles related specifically to alcohol industry issues that Richard has authored are listed below. Awarded the highest rating assigned by Martindale-Hubbell (AV), Richard devotes a substantial portion of his practice to trade regulation, litigation and dispute resolution involving the hospitality industry. He has industry-specific experience in the areas of administrative practice and regulatory compliance, advertising and promotional law, intellectual property rights, importation matters, supplier/distribution relations, and alcohol industry business practices. Richard's proficiency has been recognized by Chambers and Partners (Richard is ranked "Band 1" for Food and Beverage Law), as well as listed repeatedly and currently in peer-ranking publications such as Super Lawyers and Florida Trend's "Legal Elite." Richard has achieved the following peer-related accolades for his legal work: Chambers and Partners—nationally ranked as "Band 1" for Food and Beverage Law; Best Lawyers in America—listed for Food and Beverage Law; The American Law Institute—elected member; The Academy of Hospitality Industry Attorneys—elected member; Super Lawyers—elected member

BOGOT, William
Fox Rothschild, Chicago
wbgot@foxrothschild.com
Featured in Cannabis Law (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Bill is Co-Chair of the firm's Cannabis Law Practice. He leads a 70-attorney national team that provides a comprehensive suite of legal services to businesses in the legalized cannabis sector. He focuses his practice on providing strategic regulatory and transactional advice to both the cannabis and gaming industries. Recognized as a "Trailblazer" in cannabis law by The National Law Journal, Bill is a sought-after authority on legal developments surrounding the production, distribution and marketing of medical and adult-use cannabis products. He is frequently asked to speak at high-profile conferences on the regulatory and corporate issues shaping the sector and its burgeoning businesses. Representing some of the largest multi-state cannabis operators in the country, Bill litigates a range of civil and regulatory issues. Recent successes include securing coveted licenses in key markets and waging challenges against administrative and court license denials and disciplinary actions. Bill also helps power players in the recreational and medical cannabis space navigate complex regulations and facilitate industry-shaping mergers and acquisitions. His multidisciplinary practice reaches major cannabis markets across the country, assisting private and public cannabis companies with a range shareholder liability, venture capital, taxation, employee, trademark and financial services issues. In Illinois' cannabis market, Bill spearheaded efforts that amended the Illinois Supreme Court Rules to allow for legal representation of cannabis clients and has served regional clients since medical marijuana was legalized in 2013. Gaming and Administrative Law Bill guides national gaming industry companies, suppliers and investors through the web of complex gaming laws. Clients rely on his experience with applying for gaming licenses in jurisdictions across the country, defending gaming licensees in disciplinary proceedings, and his successful record of enjoining regulators from revoking licenses. In addition, he provides counsel on promotional sweepstakes, contests, fantasy sport leagues and charitable raffles, ensuring that such programs comply with state and federal laws and do not constitute illegal gambling. He also assists gaming regulators and law-makers with crafting new and revised gaming regulations. As a former legal adviser to the Illinois Gaming Board (IGB), Bill authored much of Illinois' gaming regulations and advised the IGB and the governor's office on all aspects of gaming law and regulation. He draws upon this extensive government experience to assist a range of clients in other industries that have regulatory oversight. Bill is frequently asked to litigate in administrative hearings, trial courts and appellate courts. In addition to the IGB, Bill's experience in Illinois includes representing clients with the Illinois Racing Board, the Illinois Department of Public Health, the Chicago Department of Public Health, the Illinois State Board of Elections, the University of Illinois, the Illinois Department of Central Management Services, the Illinois Secretary of State, the Illinois Department of Revenue, the Illinois Department of Agriculture, the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation, the Illinois Comptroller, the Cook County Department of Revenue and numerous local municipalities. He has also represented clients with government agencies outside of Illinois. In addition, his litigation experience includes acting as lead counsel in multiple state and nationwide class actions, and handling commercial and regulatory disputes between competitors.

Career: Prior to joining Fox Rothschild, Bill was a partner at Nixon Peabody (previously Ungaretti & Harris). Bill was also Acting General Counsel and Legal Counsel to the Illinois Gaming Board for over seven years. Early in his legal career, he was Assistant General Counsel to the Illinois House of Representatives and the judicial law clerk for the Honorable Aaron Jaffe in the Chancery Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County.

BUSCH, Tony
Winston & Strawn LLP, Washington, DC
Featured in International Trade (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Tony Busch is a national security-focused international trade lawyer who advises companies how to contend with complex export controls, economic sanctions, and investment restrictions arising from an increasingly contentious global regulatory landscape. Tony counsels clients on compliance with the Export Administration Regulations, the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, nuclear export controls, and Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) economic sanctions. Tony's experience is particularly strong in the areas of software and encryption, aerospace and aviation, government contracting, and materials processing. Other matters Tony handles include Antiboycott Regulations compliance, critical technologies and mandatory declaration determinations necessary for Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) analysis, and Foreign Trade Regulations compliance. In corporate deals, Tony identifies transactions that may trigger CFIUS Part 800 mandatory disclosure obligations, Defense Counterintelligence and Security Agency Foreign Ownership, Control, and Influence reporting requirements, and Directorate of Defense Trade Controls (DDTC) 60-day notice requirements, and guides clients and corporate teams through fact-finding, analysis, and any necessary disclosure, reporting, or notice requirements. Tony's services include interfacing on clients' behalf with regulatory agencies such as the Bureau of Industry and Security, DDTC, OFAC, and CFIUS, preparing sanctions delisting petitions, performing self-classification analysis, preparing license applications and classification requests, managing voluntary self-disclosures of past violations, drafting compliance policies, and performing international trade compliance due diligence for mergers, acquisitions, and other corporate transactions. Tony began his practice in federal government contracting, investigations, and False Claims Act litigation and is thus particularly sensitive to the needs of clients doing business with the government or subject to government investigation. Prior to his legal career, Tony served as counterterrorism analyst.

Featured in Government (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: As Co-Leader of the Government Contracts team, Todd Cani is entrusted by government contractors to resolve their most important "bet-the-company" government contracts matters and unexpected "crisis" events. He advises contractors throughout the life cycle of a government contract from award through closeout and everything in between, including bid protests, debarment matters, civil False Claims Act investigations, civil investigative demands, government disclosures, complex contract disputes and building and enhancing ethics and compliance programs. Todd is widely known as one of the nation's preeminent suspension and debarment lawyers and one of only a few debarment lawyers who previously served as a Department of Defense debarring official. Todd has significant experience representing contractors during "parallel proceedings", when the government pursues contractors seeking multiple remedies, including criminal, civil enforcement under the False Claims Act, contractual and/or suspension and debarment. He has successfully represented scores of contractors through government investigations and debarment inquiries, including large publicly traded contractors, small and medium sized contractors, contractor executives, owners and engineers. Todd also has successfully represented clients in qui tam litigation under the False Claims Act, including obtaining dismissal of a multimillion-dollar lawsuit at the motion to dismiss stage. Todd has appeared before nearly every active civilian and DoD Suspension Debarment office, including the U.S. Air Force, U.S. Army, U.S. Navy, Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), Defense Health Agency, EPA, General Services Administration (GSA), Department of Homeland Security (DHS), Department of Health and Kate is a Certified e-Discovery Specialist (CEDS), which is a globally-recognized credential that assures clients and co-counsel that our approaches are efficient, cost-effective, and reduces risk in all phases of e-Discovery. The strategic use of ESI – and the timing related to when ESI strategies are deployed in pending or threatened litigation – can greatly impact the flow and cost of legal proceedings. In her role as ESI Practice Group Leader, Kate designs ESI strategies that provide structured and conceptual analytic functionality for numerous aspects of e-Discovery, including document review strategy, use of technology and technology assisted review (TAR), collection and preservation strategy, ESI protocols, and training and implementation of e-Discovery practices. Kate also provides consulting services for all Bailey Glasser e-Discovery case managers and attorney case teams to drive analytics adoption at the firm, resulting in significant time and cost savings to clients. In addition to her e-Discovery practice, Kate serves as part of Bailey Glasser's multidistrict litigation (MDL) teams focusing on automotive and medical device product liability actions across the country. She was appointed to serve as liaison director of e-Discovery and ESI on several MDL leadership committees and creates case-specific document review workflows. Kate frequently speaks on various e-Discovery topics, including ESI, TAR, and legal ethics. In 2019, she was invited to share her "lessons learned" about her path to becoming a lawyer in Nora Riva Bergman's book, "50 Lessons for Women Lawyers From Women Lawyers."

Featured in Food & Beverages (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Alcohol and Hospitality, Government Relations – State and Local

Career: Often referenced as the go-to liquor lawyer in Tennessee, Will Cheek is a preeminent member of Adams and Reese's Alcohol and Hospitality practice. He counsels both local and national clients on licensing and regulatory compliance under Tennessee state and local liquor and beer laws. Will counsels distilleries, wineries, breweries and contract manufacturers on production, distribution and marketing, including complex federal and state issues. Will is one of the leading experts in tied-house issues, in which members of one of the three tiers (manufacturer – wholesaler/ distributor – retailer) are prohibited from having an ownership interest in a member of a different tier. Will's understanding of state and federal tied-house laws has allowed him to assist clients in navigating these restrictions, including drafting special legislation, formations of distillery trusts, and special liquor licenses that allow for a variety of interests across the three tiers. Will represents clients before the Tennessee Alcoholic Beverage Commission and local beer boards in licensing, enforcement actions and administrative hearings. Working in concert with Adams and Reese's Government Relations team, he drafts state and local legislation and represents clients in state court actions challenging existing ordinances and statutes and regulations. Will is a trusted legal adviser to startup businesses and emerging companies within a wide range of industries. As "on-call general counsel," Will plays a critical role in helping mom-and-pop and closely held companies accomplish growth and success. This representation ranges from Tailgate Brewery, a Nashville-based brewery adding taprooms across the state, to Kraft CPAs, one of Tennessee's largest independent accounting firms. Will is a founding member of the Alliance of Alcohol Industry Attorneys and Consultants, and he serves as an advisory board member and legal counsel for the National Association of Licensing and Compliance Professionals.

CHENG, Tai-Heng

Sidley Austin LLP, New York
1(212) 839-5661
tcheng@sidley.com

Featured in International Arbitration (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas:

TAI-HENG CHENG is a U.S. trial lawyer, international arbitration practitioner, and legal advisor to C-suites, boards, and governments. He is the global co-head of International Arbitration and Trade at Sidley. He is also the co-managing partner of the firm's Singapore office. Tai has the rare distinction of being recognized on multiple continents as a preeminent disputes lawyer. Tai is recognized in all three categories in Chambers for International Arbitration: Counsel, Arbitrator, and Enforcement (2023). He has won and collected nine figure awards in North and South America and Europe. He also won the first investor-state arbitration under a Singapore treaty and collected that award against Mexico. He defeated a nine-figure claim in a life sciences arbitration even though the client was found to have breached its contract. He currently serves as president of a tribunal deciding whether or not China violated a treaty, and is a member of another tribunal hearing a treaty claim brought against Ethiopia. No court has ever set aside an award by Tai. Tai's track record of success includes U.S. litigation. He dismissed a U.S. federal lawsuit concerning the largest cyber-heist of the New York Federal Reserve by North Korean hackers, earning him American Lawyer's "Litigator of the Week" award. He was the first attorney to defeat a motion to dismiss a defamation claim against short sellers in New York. He swiftly parlayed that unprecedented win into a payment to his client under a settlement. For two decades, he has also successfully defended clients before the U.S. regulators, including the Department of Justice and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Beyond disputes, Tai is sought out by C-suites to solve complex international problems. Tai delivers results by tapping into his global network, and devising novel strategies that leverage the entire Sidley platform. In 2022, after bankers failed to sell a global energy company's unbankable coal assets, Tai helped that company sell its coal for US$1 billion dollars to Middle East entities that did not require financing. This in turn allowed the buyers to supply energy to Europe when the war in Ukraine extended into winter. Tai also selectively represents governments. He negotiated with the National Rifle Association to restore a rare World War II gun to Poland. For that, Poland conferred upon Tai, by an act of parliament, its "Bene Merito" medal. When the International Court of Justice took up a case to decide if Kosovo's declaration of independence was lawful, Tai devised a strategy for Kosovo of obtaining recognition from important states by signing human rights and investment treaties with them. Kosovo successfully pursued that strategy, ensuring its survival irrespective of the Court's decision. He also helped East Timor draft its first criminal procedure code. Tai is a trustee of the Frick Museum; board member of the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of Asian Art; chair of the board of American Friends of St. James's Church in Piccadilly; trustee of the Foreign Policy Association; and co-founder of the Cheng-Harrell Institute for Global Affairs, among other civic engagements.

Featured in Investment Funds (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Corporate & Securities; Investment Funds

Career: Scott is the leader of Jackson Walker's institutional investor practice, where he leads a team of lawyers experienced in representing institutional investors around the world with respect to alternative assets investments (e.g., "private markets" strategies such as private equity funds, real estate funds, infrastructure funds and credit funds as well as "public markets" strategies such as hedge funds, long-only funds, collective investment trusts, and separately managed accounts).

Representative clients include: public and private pension plans, university and research endowments, sovereign wealth funds, insurance companies, corporate investment divisions, funds of funds and family offices. One of Scott's key focus areas is in bespoke investment arrangements, which can take the form of separately managed accounts, funds of one, master custody agreements, and strategic partnerships. These arrangements typically involve a high degree of customization, including bespoke investment guidelines and restrictions, changes to the standard of care, non-standard expense reimbursement, and highly customized management and incentive fee models. One of Scott's favorite things to do is to work with clients to develop new incentive fee structures, including building and testing the fee models, because, in Scott's words, "one cannot draft a fee schedule if one does not understand the math, and the best way to understand the math is to build the model."

He also supports the technology transfer and research operations of clients in negotiating various research and clinical trial agreements. EMERGING COMPANIES I help my emerging company clients, including those spun-off from academic research institutions, grow their business and raise capital through seed, angel, VC, and private equity financings. This includes advice and negotiation regarding formation, IP licensing, and the other agreements that make up the varied spectrum of issues unique to each start-up client. CORPORATE TRANSACTIONS I represent both buyers and sellers in the purchase and sale of businesses in a wide range of industries including health services, life sciences, and private equity. I also maintain a robust general business law practice, often acting as outside in-house counsel to handle clients' day-to-day legal needs. CLINICAL RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER I work with academic institutions, pharmaceuticals, CROs, and clinical trial sites to facilitate the conduct of clinical research. I also work closely with academic clients to develop and support their technology transfer programs and these institutions' various technology-driven transactions. My experience with both industry and academic clients has given me the hands-on experience needed to best — and most practically — advise my clients. Industry will seek to enter the vibrant emerging company space as part of their efforts to seek new ways to integrate and ensure access to burgeoning technologies. This will include increased formation of venture funds to invest in these opportunities in an organized, purposeful way.

Allan represents a variety of companies, ranging from technology-based startups, to mid-sized closely held and family-owned businesses, to large public companies. Allan dedicates much of his practice to emerging companies in the formation and organization of their businesses, seed, angel and VC financings, and general business advice. Allan also focuses on mergers and acquisitions, including buy-side work and sell-side work to strategic and private equity acquirors. He is involved in a wide range of industries, including health care, medical device, life sciences and biotechnology, manufacturing and distribution, food and beverage, and consumer products. Allan distinguishes himself by his adeptness at handling his clients' varied legal needs and providing the type of business-minded outside counsel that companies would expect from an in-house general counsel. His clients view him as the "quarterback," ensuring that not only their business law, but also their intellectual property, employment, litigation, regulatory and other legal needs are met. I maintain a transactional and general business law practice, adept at handling my clients' varied business needs and providing the type of business-minded advice that businesses would expect from an in-house general counsel. My clients view me as the "quarterback," ensuring that not only their business law but also their employment, litigation, intellectual property, regulatory, and other legal needs are met. I dedicate much of my practice to mergers and acquisitions, including buy-side work for public and private companies and sell-side work for closely held and family-owned businesses. My M&A transactions involve a wide range of industries, including healthcare, medical device, life sciences, food, consumer products, and insurance. Over my career, I have closed well over 200 M&A transactions. Emerging companies also represent a significant part of my practice, including biotech, medical device, and other technology-based companies; I assist with business formation and organization and seed, angel, venture capital, and private equity financings. Much of my work is for "serial entrepreneurs" who have exited prior businesses and are starting their next ones. Technology-based and other companies that flourished during the pandemic will provide a hedge against economic uncertainty and fears of a recession. The greatest success will go to entrepreneurs that identify where the post-pandemic business world will be and get there before their competitors.

Featured in Antitrust (USA – Nationwide), Antitrust (New York)

Practice Areas: Eva Cole helps clients navigate the complex area of antitrust law, identifying and mitigating risks before they turn into problems and effectively managing and resolving problems that have unavoidably turned into disputes. As co-chair of the firm's Antitrust/Competition Practice Group, she focuses her practice on civil antitrust litigation, class actions, and international cartel investigations led by enforcement agencies around the world. She has particularly distinguished experience representing clients in the electronics, financial, and sports industries. Eva regularly represents clients in complex commercial class action and litigation, and in connection with a wide array of federal and state antitrust issues, including monopolization, price-fixing, wage-fixing, no-poach agreements, group boycotts, exclusive dealing, tying, price discrimination, predatory pricing, unfair competition and other restraints of trade. She regularly coordinates joint defense group efforts in cases involving conspiracy claims against multiple defendants. Eva also has significant experience representing clients facing international cartel investigations and related follow-on civil class actions. She has helped clients navigate the difficult web of facing multiple, simultaneous government investigations around the world and has experience defending antitrust investigations brought by antitrust authorities in the United States, Australia, Brazil, Canada, the Czech Republic, Europe, Hungary, Japan, Korea, Mexico, Singapore and New Zealand. She represents clients in both civil and criminal antitrust matters and, in addition to her representation of major U.S. and multinational corporations, she also represents individual executives facing criminal antitrust claims. In this context, Eva has gained a great deal of experience assisting Japanese clients and is a core member of the firm's Japan practice. Over the years, she has developed a deep and enduring respect for Japanese traditions and Japan's unique business climate. She ensures that any client – whether in Japan or another part of the world – receives the same level of service as a client down the street. She also regularly acts as a liaison between non-U.S. based clients and their lawyers from other parts of the world to ensure global problems are handled consistently and efficiently. In addition, Eva regularly advises companies with respect to antitrust compliance. Among other things, she helps companies develop antitrust compliance policies and training to help prevent antitrust problems. In particular, Eva has helped private equity funds with numerous portfolio companies and other types of corporations with multiple subsidiaries and affiliates develop comprehensive and consistent antitrust compliance programming. In addition to Eva's experience in the antitrust context, she has also represented clients facing consumer fraud and other business tort and breach of contract claims, as well as various constitutional claims. She has represented clients across multiple industries including consumer electronics, food and beverage, finance, sports and entertainment, and retail. Eva has represented clients in all stages of litigation, including appeals, and through trial as a first-chair litigator. Eva brings personal attention to each and every matter she handles, recognizing that the best client relationships develop over time and mature into partnerships built on trust and familiarity. Clients benefit from her deep engagement, strategic thinking, practical approach, and efficient management of complex matters.

Featured in Projects (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Roddy Devlin is a globally recognized, leading lawyer in the public-private partnership (P3) space receiving recognition from both Chambers USA and Chambers Global for his P3 work. Roddy is a sought after writer and speaker on P3-related topics. I assist private and public sector parties in developing, financing, consummating, operating, and maintaining significant infrastructure projects domestically and overseas, with a particular focus on public-private partnerships. On the private side, I represent project sponsors, lenders, underwriters, and construction companies in their P3 and project development efforts in a wide range of sectors. No two projects are the same, and no two sectors are the same. With this in mind, I ensure that my team includes the sector and subject matter experts required to provide my clients with optimal outcomes. I have also assisted a number of public entities in coming to the market with their first P3 projects. Public-private partnerships raise myriad complicated issues for the public sector owner. I assist my public sector clients in assessing and properly allocating the key project risks among project participants in a manner that serves the goals of the owner and the needs of public users. GLOBAL SCOPE I have been involved in P3 transactions across the United States, the Caribbean, South America and Europe. These projects have involved roadways, airports, bridges, ports, water projects and entertainment assets. For example, I advised the bond issuer in connection with the multi-source financing of the $4 billion LaGuardia Airport Central Terminal P3 project in New York City, procured by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. The $2.6 billion of bonds issued for this project is the largest bond issuance to date for a US P3 project. There is wide recognition that US infrastructure — from roads, bridges, and airports to water systems, schools, and civic buildings — requires significant new investment, both to maintain existing assets at an acceptable level and to add necessary additional assets. I believe that public-private partnerships will be an important part of the solution. Although not right for every project, a properly structured public-private partnership can tap the technical know-how and efficiencies of the private sectors, as well as private sector financing, while allowing the public owner to continue its traditional role of ensuring that infrastructure assets are properly operated and maintained to meet the needs of the public users.

Featured in eDiscovery (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: E-Discovery & Information Governance

Career: Gareth T. Evans, Partner at Redgrave LLP, is one of the nation's leading eDiscovery litigators and advisors. Over the course of his career, he has made hundreds of court appearances, taken and defended countless depositions, and counseled clients in significant and contentious disputes. Gareth's extensive experience spans a broad range of information law issues, and he counsels clients on practical and effective approaches to discovery strategy, including devising innovative approaches to privilege and confidentiality in matters. A passion for eDiscovery and information law drives Gareth's commitment to tackling challenging issues in the field, and he leverages his extensive knowledge and experience to steer complex litigation across various industries, including manufacturing, transportation, finance, healthcare, technology, and energy. His work as discovery counsel involves overseeing the investigation, preservation, and collection of relevant ESI, formulating technology assisted review strategies, defending review and production processes in court proceedings, and challenging the adequacy of the opposing party's processes. Gareth also leads teams in tackling complex privilege and confidentiality matters and employs strategic approaches to asserting and defending privilege claims and sealing confidential information, including trade secrets and other proprietary and sensitive information. His work related to privilege and confidentiality has resulted in numerous successful outcomes, including Gareth's work in a high-stakes healthcare antitrust and pricing litigation where all privilege claims were successfully defended and the judge upheld hundreds of sealing requests. Gareth works with clients to develop efficient strategies for challenging issues, often evaluating how technology can influence effective legal solutions. He appropriately scopes legal holds and evaluates and implements legal hold technology strategies, develops approaches for expedited and cost-effective search and review of large document populations, and is skilled in finding key facts early in litigation and investigations using technology-assisted review and other methodologies. Gareth also advises clients on defensible disposition, data remediation, and records retention policies and practices. He prides himself on his dedication to helping clients achieve optimal outcomes both inside and outside the courthouse. As a thought leader in the information law space, Gareth is a frequently published author and speaker on various eDiscovery and information governance topics. Chambers USA has recognized him as a leading lawyer in the field of E-Discovery and Information Governance for several years, and he is recognized by Who's Who Legal: Litigation in the area of eDiscovery. Prior to joining Redgrave LLP, Gareth was a partner at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP for 20 years and a lawyer with the firm for 28 years, focusing on eDiscovery, information law, complex business litigation, securities litigation, insurance litigation, and governmental investigations. He was a founder and chair of the firm's eDiscovery and Information Law Practice Group and the lead author and editor of the firm's highly acclaimed eDiscovery Year-End and Mid-Year Reports. Gareth also served as a law clerk to the Hon. Gordon Thompson, Jr. of the United States District Court for the Southern District of California.

John has helped clients recover more than 2.5 billion dollars from their insurers through litigation, alternative dispute resolution or negotiation in some of the most significant insurance matters involving a wide range of issues, including: -directors' and officers' liability, securities, and corporate governance matters, such as the AT&T coverage litigation - mutual fund market timing and sales practices claims - complex financial fraud recoveries - losses related to the global economic crisis, such as auction rate securities and the Madoff fraud - environmental, toxic tort, and products liability, such as the Exxon Valdez insurance litigation - property and business interruption claims arising from the September 11 terrorist attacks - secondary life insurance transactions - computer and electronic crime claims - privacy, cyber-risk, and data security claims Although he has handled claims under nearly every type of policy and against every major insurer, John has particular experience handling financial institution insurance matters. He regularly represents banks, securities broker-dealers, underwriters, asset management firms, mutual fund complexes, private equity firms, venture capital groups and hedge funds, as well as corporate officers and directors and securities issuers. John has pursued claims on behalf of a number of financial institutions under directors and officers' and errors and omissions policies, as well as fidelity bonds, commercial crime policies and electronic and computer crime policies. Counseling: In addition to policyholder advocacy, John also advises and counsels clients on risk management and underwriting issues, including drafting and negotiating insurance policy language, insurance audits and historical program reconstruction, and structuring commercial and captive insurance programs. John regularly advises members of corporate boards and corporate officers on emerging liability risks and ways to improve their insurance coverage. He assists clients with insurance and indemnification issues in connection with corporate transactions by performing insurance due diligence, potential exposure and insurance recovery valuation and modeling, preparing risk transfer, insurance and indemnity provisions in stock and asset purchase and sale agreements, and advising clients regarding insurance transfer and succession issues. John has negotiated special insurance programs and drafted insurance policies intended to cover unique and emerging risks, such as specialty environmental policies and transaction-specific programs. John regularly advises insurance risk managers on all aspects of insurance risk management, including annual insurance program and policy wording reviews, program structure, captives, specialty insurance coverages, analysis of emerging risks, and indemnification provisions. In addition, John is a frequent speaker and writer on insurance coverage issues. He currently serves on the Editorial Board of Insurance Law 360 and is leading a panel at the Risk Insurance Management Society (RIMS) Annual Conference called "E&O Insurance: Your Best Friend In The Economic Crisis."

Featured in International Trade (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Ryan's practice focuses on government and congressional investigations, crisis management, cross-border compliance, corporate governance, and white-collar criminal defense. Ryan is also a member of the Anti-Corruption and Internal Investigations practice group and sits on the firm's Executive Committee. Ryan draws upon a multi-disciplinary skillset to assist corporations, boards of directors, audit committees, and senior executives facing high-profile reputational risks and incident response, often involving U.S. and foreign regulators and enforcement authorities, political stakeholders, and the media. He also advises clients on strategic opportunities, governance and compliance best practices, acquisition due diligence, and national security reviews before the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS). An experienced trial lawyer, Ryan has successfully tried several cases to verdict, with the unique ability to handle deeply regulatory matters and seamlessly transition to high profile enforcement actions involving the DOJ as well as regulators at the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC), Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN), Bureau of Industry and Security (BIS), and the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls (DDTC). Ryan has been named to Global Investigations Review's elite list of the most respected sanctions lawyers in Washington, D.C. The Legal 500 has recognized Ryan for "excel[ling] at leading and conducting investigatory work as a result of the 'wealth of experience and insights' he gained in his former position as a DOJ national security prosecutor." Ryan's clients come from varied industries, including financial services, private equity, technology, aerospace and defense, telecommunications, energy, mining, construction materials, logistics, pharmaceuticals, and consumer goods. Ryan maintains an active pro bono practice and, in particular, has extensive experience representing current and former hostages of foreign governments and transnational criminal organizations, as well as the unlawfully detained, with a focus on advocating for victim families, securing release, and ensuring long term reintegration. Previous Experience Prior to private practice, Ryan served for 11 years in the DOJ, where he was a leading prosecutor handling complex cross border investigations and prosecutions affecting the national security and foreign policy of the United States, including espionage, sanctions and embargoes, arms proliferation, trade secret theft, cybercrime, corruption, and money laundering. Ryan also served in the National Security Division, where he most recently served as the principal DOJ attorney overseeing sanctions and export control prosecutions nationally. He also served on the inter-agency staff for CFIUS. Ryan's most notable investigations and prosecutions have received prominent national and international media coverage. Several were recognized with the DOJ's highest awards. In 2010, Ryan was awarded the Attorney General's Award for Excellence in Furthering the Interests of U.S. National Security for his role in the prosecution and disruption of a vast international proliferation network responsible for smuggling electrical components from the U.S., which were ultimately used in improvised explosive devices targeting troops in Iraq and Afghanistan. In 2009, Ryan received the Assistant Attorney General Award for Supporting the National Security Mission for his role in the investigation and prosecution of an espionage ring involving corrupt Department of Defense officials. Ryan has received numerous other awards from the DOJ and multiple recognitions from the law enforcement and intelligence communities. Ryan began his legal career as a federal law clerk in the Central District of Illinois, his home district, prior to being recruited to DOJ through the prestigious Attorney General's Honors Program, where initially he handled fraud matters arising under the federal False Claims Act.

Featured in Franchising (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Steven Feirman practices franchise and distribution law, with an emphasis on helping franchisors expand their franchise systems in the United States and in foreign jurisdictions. Steve focuses on helping established and emerging franchise systems develop their business models, and he has extensive experience structuring and preparing franchise, license, supply, and distribution agreements for domestic and international transactions. With Steve's background as a federal government regulator, much of his work involves the structuring of franchise systems to ensure that they comply with federal, state and foreign franchise laws. Steve guides his clients to embrace best franchising practices in their franchise documents and operations, which results in franchise systems that are marketable and collaborative. By using this approach, Steve has successful clients in a variety of industries, including restaurants, hospitality, financial services, travel, real estate, education, personal services, business services, retail, and wellness. Steve has gained renown for his work at the intersection of franchising and antitrust, including pricing strategy and supply chain matters. He counsels franchise companies on antitrust and trade regulation matters such as pricing programs, supply restrictions, territory and customer limitations, joint ventures, mergers and acquisitions, and other sensitive competition issues. For example, because franchisors are not permitted to control franchisee prices in some states, his clients have used techniques such as geographic price fixing, pricing incentives, minimum advertised price (MAP) policies, agency models, and consignment arrangements. He has also developed a unilateral "Colgate" policy for a national restaurant system that is thought to be the only such policy in use by a franchisor. Steve conducts franchise and antitrust compliance programs for his clients, and he represents companies before federal and state government agencies on both franchising and antitrust matters. Steve is a frequent lecturer and contributor to legal publication on antitrust and franchise law topics. He has served as an editor of some of the leading publications in the field, including Franchise Law Journal and Franchise Legal Digest, and as a contributor to Global Competition Review, Franchising World, The Franchise Lawyer, and The International Journal of Franchising and Distribution Law. I am a former Federal Trade Commission lawyer, and I focus on helping well-established and emerging franchise systems develop their business models and expand their businesses. Many franchisors call on me to address their most complex issues, and I serve as both their legal counsel and strategic business advisor. FRANCHISE COMPLIANCE Much of my work involves the structuring of franchise systems to ensure that they comply with all federal, state and foreign franchise laws. More importantly, I seek to ensure that my clients embrace best franchising practices in their franchise documents and operations. This results in a franchise system that is marketable and collaborative. By using this approach, I have happy clients in a variety of industries, including restaurants, hospitality, financial services, travel, real estate, personal services, business services, retail and health care. PRICING AND OTHER COMPETITION ISSUES I regularly advise franchisors and others on pricing, supply restrictions, acquisitions, joint ventures and other sensitive competition issues. Companies that commit antitrust violations can be subject to serious penalties, including treble damages. With my experience as a federal antitrust enforcement official, I have helped many franchisors navigate through varying federal and state antitrust laws. For example, because franchisors are not permitted to control franchisee prices in some states, my clients have used techniques such as Minimum Advertised Price policies, geographic price fixing, pricing incentives, agency models and consignment arrangements. One of my favorite projects in recent years was the development of a unilateral "Colgate" policy that is thought to be the only such policy in use by a franchisor. In recent years, franchisors have recognized the benefits of multi-unit franchising. I believe that this trend will continue, but with a shift from subfranchising toward area development.

Career: Steve received his undergraduate degree (A.B., magna cum laude) from Colgate University and his law degree from Washington University School of Law, where he served as an editor of the law review. He has received the Federal Trade Commission's Meritorious Service Award, was awarded the Burton Award for Legal Achievement, and was inducted into the Franchise Times Hall of Fame.

Featured in International Trade (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Dan Fisher-Owens is a Partner based in San Francisco, California, focusing on U.S. export controls and economic sanctions. His practice covers transactional counseling, classification/commodity jurisdiction, licensing, designing and auditing compliance systems, as well as voluntary disclosures, investigations and enforcement matters. While not an engineer, Dan enjoys digging into not just the legal complexities of export controls, but also the technical complexities of the products involved. Dan applies his experience as a translator (in his life before lawyering) to export controls, bridging communication gaps between those who "speak geek" and those who speak "Washingtonese." His in-depth understanding of U.S. economic sanctions, including the complex sanctions against Iran and Russia/Ukraine, is enhanced by his background in Middle Eastern history and culture. He has supported corporate clients on numerous complex sanctions matters, including the withdrawal of multinationals from sanctioned countries, as well as the entry of companies to embargoed countries after easing of U.S. sanctions. Dan has significant experience with licensing of agricultural and medical exports to embargoed countries, and assists foundations and NGOs with navigating educational and humanitarian exemptions to U.S. sanctions. He has published on the release of export-controlled technology to foreign nationals—known as "deemed exports"—and spoken before trade associations and industry groups on a broad range of export controls and sanctions topics, such as encryption, compliance program design, licensing best practices, and commodity jurisdiction and classification. Dan's expertise covers the State Department International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR), Commerce Department Export Administration Regulations (EAR), Treasury Department Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) sanctions, as well as Department of Energy and Nuclear Regulatory Commission nuclear export controls. He has a nuanced understanding of the Byzantine U.S. antiboycott laws, and assists clients with Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and U.S. anti-money laundering issues, particularly where they overlap with U.S. economic sanctions. He has developed a deep knowledge of the export control issues affecting computers, software, encryption, networking and telecommunications equipment, infrared detectors, test and measurement equipment, chemical and biological agents and processing equipment, medical devices and pharmaceuticals, geophysical instruments, oilfield tools, and aerospace items. Dan is fluent in Arabic, having lived and worked in the Middle East. He is also fluent in Spanish and has a working knowledge of Persian and French. Dan is on the Board of Directors of the Professional Association of Exporters and Importers ("PAEI"), a Bay Area non-profit provider of educational programs relating to import and export controls. Practice Areas: Vincenzo represents generation owners and developers, energy traders, private equity firms, financial institutions, and other investors on transactional, regulatory, and compliance matters involving the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and advises clients on the requirements of the Federal Power Act, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2005, and the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978. Vincenzo provides regulatory counsel on project development, M&A and financing transactions, participation in energy and capacity markets, and complex structured transactions, including renewable corporate power purchase agreements and offsite renewable solutions. He advises clients on all aspects of FERC's market-based rate program, RTO/ISO rules, and the requirements associated with exempt wholesale generator and qualifying facility status. He regularly helps clients obtain FERC authorization for utility mergers or sales and acquisitions of electric assets in Section 203 proceedings. Vincenzo also assists clients in developing, maintaining, and auditing effective compliance programs and represents energy companies and individuals in investigations and enforcement actions involving alleged violations of FERC's anti-manipulation rule, FERC's duty of candor or RTO/ISO tariff requirements. Between 2014 and 2019, Vincenzo served as Assistant General Counsel - Wholesale Trading Compliance and then Associate General Counsel at Exelon Corporation, where he led the compliance function for Constellation - the Exelon business unit responsible for wholesale and retail sales of power, gas, and energy products. In that role, he managed Constellation's compliance program, reviewed proposed trading strategies, responded to regulatory inquiries, and advised senior leadership on compliance matters and regulatory issues associated with structured transactions.

Practice Areas: Kimberly Frank co-leads the firm's global Power practice group and focuses her electric regulatory practice on representing clients in matters before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and state utility commissions, as well as transactions in the US market. Kimberly's clients include investor-owned electric utilities and electric cooperatives, large consumers, and government agencies. She represents clients before FERC in contested proceedings, administrative hearings and settlements, rulemakings, technical conferences, and investigations. She advises clients in developing strategies for litigation and prepares complaints, protests, comments and other pleadings filed with the agency. She works regularly with economists, engineers, accountants, financial analysts, and other electric utility industry experts. Kimberly helps clients navigate the complex rules of the FERC-regulated regional wholesale markets, assisting to evaluate and advocate for rule changes in the energy, capacity, and ancillary services markets. She has represented clients in numerous proceedings before FERC, including capacity and energy market rules in the regional markets, transmission and generation rate cases, formula rate design, transmission planning, and cost allocation. Kimberly counsels clients developing renewable energy facilities, regulated by FERC on Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act (PURPA), Public Utility Holding Company Act (PUHCA), and Federal Power Act (FPA) compliance. She assists clients with interconnections to distribution and transmission systems and with regulatory compliance matters related to federal- and state-regulated electric power transactions. Before her legal career, Kimberly was research faculty with a law and economics think tank in the Department of Economics, University of Maryland College Park.

Practice Areas: Data Privacy, Cybersecurity, HIPAA, Education, Health Law, Litigation, Exempt Organizations, Government Enforcement, Internal Investigations, Corporate Compliance, Business Litigation and Dispute Resolution, Financial Services Cyber-Compliance

Career: Linn Freedman, chair of Robinson+Cole's Data Privacy + Cybersecurity Team, practices in data privacy and security law, cybersecurity, and complex litigation. She provides guidance on data privacy and cybersecurity compliance to a full range of public and private clients across all industries, such as construction, education, health care, insurance, manufacturing, real estate, utilities and critical infrastructure, marine, and charitable organizations. Linn helps clients comply with all state and federal data privacy and security laws and regulations, and counsels them on state and federal data privacy and security investigations. Linn advises companies and organizations on best practices for the collection, maintenance, and sharing of high-risk data, to help avoid breaches and cyber intrusions. She assists with data mapping and development of privacy and security plans. She helps clients comply with constantly evolving, industry-specific privacy and data protection regulatory requirements, including TCPA, COPPA, FCRA, FERPA, HIPAA, CCPA, CalOPPA, the Gramm-Leach Bliley Act and state specific laws and regulations. Linn also assists clients with Written Information Security Plans (WISPs). She provides guidance regarding privacy and data protection implications associated with the deployment of mobile communication and data storage technologies, mobile applications, and location-based services. She works with clients to develop software and cloud vendor agreements, website and mobile app privacy policies and terms and conditions of use, and social media policies, practices and procedures. Linn has given presentations around the country on data privacy and cybersecurity, and she writes extensively on these topics, including for Robinson+Cole's Data Privacy + Security Insider blog. Linn assists clients with data breach preparedness, including assisting with vendor choice and pre-negotiating contracts for forensic, notification, and call center services. She also assists with the development and training of data breach response teams. If there is a data breach, Linn assists with all related response, notification, remediation, coordination, and litigation. She is well-versed in helping clients with post-breach investigations by the Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. Office for Civil Rights, and state attorney general offices. She also provides security incident tabletop exercises for clients. If a data breach or privacy issue results in litigation or an enforcement action, Linn works with clients to resolve the matter through the court system or before federal or state regulatory agencies. She also represents various companies in privacy litigation matters around unauthorized access, use or disclosure of personally identifiable and health information and in retrieving the unauthorized transfer of data from companies by employees. Linn is a former Assistant Attorney General for the State of Rhode Island and works with the AGs of multiple states around compliance and enforcement actions involving data breaches and data security. Linn has extensive experience helping clients with HIPAA compliance. She regularly assists with HIPAA compliance programs and employee awareness training, cybersecurity in relation to patient portals, and data use and sharing agreements for health information exchanges. She has deep experience helping clients defend enforcement actions by the Office for Civil Rights of the Department of Health and Human Services. Linn is a Certified Information Privacy Professional/US (CIPP/US) by the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP) and an Adjunct Professor of Law at Roger Williams University School of Law.

Practice Areas: Jessica's practice is focused on renewable and conventional independent power producers, power marketers, and transmission developers throughout the United States. She represents owners, operators and investors of all sizes in the electric energy sector, from startup developers to private equity funds, infrastructure funds and institutional investors. Jessica specializes in federal energy regulatory matters related to: - Development, ownership and operation of electric generation and transmission projects; - Equity, asset and debt transactions involving electric projects; - ISO/RTO market participation rules; and - Ongoing compliance with applicable FERC requirements. With respect to development assets, Jessica regularly provides counsel on complex generator interconnection issues, including shared facilities and upgrades, co-tenancy structures, preservation of priority rights to proprietary capacity, and pseudo-tie and dynamic scheduling arrangements. Jessica advises clients on transmission service solutions, such as joint ventures, and negotiates related agreements. She also counsels transmission developers on strategic development decisions related to equity ownership structures and capacity allocation arrangements, as well as negotiated rate authority, incentive-based rate treatment and FERC's open access tariff requirements. Jessica assists clients with obtaining all necessary regulatory permits and approvals from FERC prior to commencing operations or consummating transactions. Jessica routinely works on sections 203, 204, and 205 matters under the Federal Power Act, including securing market-based rate authority and prior FERC authorization for certain transactions. In addition, Jessica assists electric projects and their owners with obtaining "exempt wholesale generator" or "qualifying facility" status and related exemptions and waivers under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2005 and Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978, respectively. The transaction-specific element of Jessica's practice includes conducting regulatory due diligence on the FERC status of electric assets, advising clients on contractual agreements and structures for equity sales and asset transfers, and obtaining the necessary FERC approvals. Jessica routinely serves as special regulatory counsel in energy project M&A and financing transactions. Jessica frequently counsels her clients on the ever-evolving rules and compliance obligations associated with participation in organized wholesale capacity and energy markets operated by ISOs/ RTOs. Jessica also represents clients in compliance audits and investigations before FERC.

Cassia specializes in the intersection of local and state regulation and private industry, having worked on both public and private sides of the negotiating table. Her background in public finance, land use planning, local government law, and commercial real estate provides insight into all phases of cannabis permitting and licensed operations. In addition to regulatory work, she focuses on cannabis supply chain transactions, working tirelessly to help her clients meet and exceed their business goals in an ever-changing landscape. Bringing her considerable industry experience to bear, she collaborates closely with licensed operators, brands, investors and landlords to anticipate new market forces and impacts before they occur. She favors a practical, results-oriented approach to the law and understands the nuances of creative problem-solving in heavily regulated industries. Prior to joining Vicente LLP, Cassia worked with a noted public finance firm where she oversaw the organization and operations of dozens of special districts created to finance and develop complex public infrastructure projects. Cassia also assisted in the representation of numerous Colorado municipalities, where her duties included the drafting and implementation of comprehensive medical marijuana ordinances. She attended the University of Colorado School of Law and Hamilton College. In addition to client advocacy, Cassia plays an active role in multiple California and national cannabis industry groups and speaks and writes frequently on cannabis legal issues. She is the co-author of "The Cannabis Business: Understanding Law, Finance and Governance in America's Newest Industry" available in print from Routledge Press. Cassia has been recognized by the prestigious Chambers and Partners as one of the top cannabis lawyers in the United States in 2021 and 2022.

GARRE, Gregory

Latham & Watkins LLP, Washington, DC
202.637.2207
gregory.garre@lw.com

Featured in Appellate Law (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Gregory Garre is a partner in the Washington, D.C. office of Latham & Watkins and Global Chair of the firm's Supreme Court & Appellate Practice. Named a 2019 and 2022 Litigation Star by Benchmark Litigation, a 2016 Appellate MVP by Law360, and 2016 Winning Litigator by the National Law Journal, he is widely considered one of the nation's top appellate advocates. Mr. Garre handles a broad array of complex litigation matters at all levels of the federal and state court systems and counsels clients on constitutional, statutory, regulatory, and other legal matters. Mr. Garre served as the 44th Solicitor General of the United States (2008-2009), after being unanimously confirmed to the position by the US Senate. As Solicitor General, he was the federal government's top lawyer before the Supreme Court and was responsible for overseeing the government's litigation in the federal appellate courts. He also served as Principal Deputy Solicitor General (2005-2008) and as an Assistant to the Solicitor General (2000-2004). He is the only person to have held all of those positions within the Office of the Solicitor General. Mr. Garre has argued 48 cases before the Supreme Court and has briefed and served as counsel of record in hundreds of additional cases before the Court at both the merits and certiorari stage. Mr. Garre has successfully argued some of the highest profile cases before the Supreme Court during the last 15 years, including Fisher v. University of Texas, Florida v. Georgia, Ashcroft v. Iqbal, Vance v. Ball State University, United States v. Home Concrete

& Supply LLC, Maples v. Thomas, Christian Legal Society v. Martinez, FCC v. Fox Television Stations, Inc., Winter v. Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., Baze v. Rees, and Dastar Corp. v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. In addition, he has filed scores of successful certiorari petitions before the Court, and successfully opposed certiorari on numerous occasions. Mr. Garre has frequently prevailed in the most hard-fought cases before the Supreme Court. For example, in Florida v. Georgia, the Supreme Court issued a 5-4 decision allowing Florida's equitable apportionment action against Georgia to proceed, a major win for the state in its battle to save the Apalachicola region. In Fisher v. University of Texas, the Supreme Court issued a 4-3 decision upholding the University of Texas's admissions program against a constitutional challenge. In Vance v. Ball State University, the Court issued a 5-4 decision in favor of Mr. Garre's employer client, in one of the most closely watched employment discrimination cases in recent years. And, in United States v. Home Concrete, the Court sided with Mr. Garre's taxpayer client and handed the IRS a rare defeat in a 5-4 decision that the Wall Street Journal reported could have a billion dollar tax impact. Mr. Garre also has argued scores of cases before the federal and state courts of appeals. In recent appeals, for example, he secured the reversal of a US$657 million dollar damages award entered against United Technologies Corp. under the False Claims Act, which had been the largest damages award entered for the government under the False Claims Act following a trial. As The American Lawyer wrote, "Gregory Garre convinced a federal appeals court to throw out [the US$657 million award]," "upending a government victory in a roller-coaster case spanning three decades." (United Technologies Corp. v. US) Mr. Garre also has handled numerous cases before the Federal Circuit, including in the areas of patent eligibility and claim construction. For example, he secured a complete victory before the Federal Circuit on behalf of WildTangent, Inc. in UltraMercial Inc. v. WildTangent Inc., named by Law360 as one of five patent cases to watch in 2014. In OIP Technologies Inc. v. Amazon.com, he secured the dismissal of a major patent infringement action against Amazon. And he secured a complete win for Amazon.com in another major patent fight in United Video Properties, Inc. v. Amazon.com. Mr. Garre has handled numerous other patent matters, including successful dispositive motions in district court. Mr. Garre also secured high-profile appellate victories on behalf of one of the country's largest builders in a major tax appeal in the US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit (Shea Homes v. Commissioner); a group of leading oil, gas, and other Fortune 100 companies in a major environmental case decided by the US Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit (National Environmental Development Ass'n Clean Air Project v. EPA); and on behalf of Ford Motor Company in a significant preemption case decided by the South Carolina Supreme Court (Priester v. Ford). In addition, in NJOY v. FDA, Mr. Garre secured a path-marking victory in the D.C. Circuit on behalf of an e-cigarette maker on the scope of the Food and Drug Administration's regulatory authority over e-cigarettes, which the Wall Street Journal called a "bet-the-industry case." Mr. Garre has handled cases involving a wide array of additional matters, including in the areas of administrative law, alien tort statute, antitrust, arbitration, bankruptcy, business and employment and labor law, contract law, civil rights, education, environmental law (Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act, and National Environmental Policy Act), First Amendment, Fifth Amendment, food and drug, Indian law, intellectual property (patent, copyright, and trademark), international law, labor, preemption, separation of powers, tax, telecommunications, torts, and voting rights. In 2014, Mr. Garre was elected to both the American Law Institute and the American Academy of Appellate Lawyers. In 2012, he was awarded the prestigious Rex Lee Advocacy Award. In 2016, 2014, and 2011, he was recognized by the Financial Times in its US Innovative Lawyers Report. In 2010, he was named Appellate Lawyer of the Week by the National Law Journal for his successful arguments before the Supreme Court in two different cases just eight days apart. Mr. Garre also has received numerous awards for his public service, including the Attorney General's Medallion for his service as Solicitor General. He is a recipient of the Attorney General's Distinguished Service Award, the Attorney General's Award for Excellence in Furthering Interests of US National Security and additional honors from the Department of Justice for his work on important civil litigation matters. In addition, he received the Navy's Distinguished Public Service Award — the Navy's highest civilian honor — for his argument in Winter v. NRDC, which secured a major Supreme Court win for the Navy. In 2011, the Chief Justice of the United States appointed Mr. Garre to the Standing Committee on the Rules of Practice and Procedure of the Judicial Conference of the United States, the highest rule-making body in the US Judicial System, where he served until 2017. In that capacity, Mr. Garre also served as a liaison member of the Advisory Committee on Appellate Rules. In 2018, Mr. Garre was appointed to the Board of Directors of the US Chamber Litigation Center, the litigating arm of the US Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Garre has taught constitutional law and Supreme Court practice at the George Washington University Law School, where he delivered the commencement address for the law school in its 150th anniversary year. He has testified before Congress on several occasions and speaks and publishes frequently on issues related to the Supreme Court and appellate practice. Following his graduation from law school, Mr. Garre served as a law clerk to Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and to Judge Anthony J. Scirica of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Practice Areas: Data Strategy, Privacy & Security Technology & Digital Media Advertising Technology Artificial Intelligence Interactive Entertainment

Career: Daniel M. Goldberg is Chair of the Data Strategy, Privacy & Security Group and Co-Chair of the Advertising Technology Group. He is consistently recognized as one of the nation's leading data lawyers, and uses his considerable experience to help companies navigate legal compliance obligations relating to their data initiatives. Daniel specializes in all matters involving data – from collection and monetization to storage and security. He has deep experience in the application of privacy and data security laws to consumer and HR datasets, including under the Federal Trade Commission Act (FTC Act), WPA-style state laws (Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Montana, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and Utah), and sectoral laws (such as Washington's My Health My Data Act). Based in Los Angeles, Daniel is considered a thought leader in California privacy law, specifically the California Privacy Rights Act (CPRA) and the Age-Appropriate Design Code (AADC), effective July 2024. Daniel not only reads data laws, he is instrumental in shaping their application. He is a frequent speaker and writer, and has worked with business leaders, regulators, and self-regulatory bodies to interpret and address obligations under these laws. For his latest insights, please read the Firm's Technology Law Updates blog. Daniel often works in a strategic role of advising companies on the development of data governance frameworks. In this role, Daniel collaborates with various stakeholders (including C-suite, legal, sales, marketing, and IT) to evaluate data flows, assess and mitigate risks that arise from proposed projects and products, and harmonize programs and policies to address obligations across jurisdictions and platforms. This work involves analysis of high risk activities, including the collection of sensitive datasets (such as precise location data, health data, and children's data) and use of generative AI (such as through facial detection/recognition, profiling, and automated-decision making that has potential for algorithmic bias). Daniel combines his deep understanding of technology and privacy law to translate complex technical and legal concepts into actionable items, and help companies process data consistent with consumer expectations. Daniel is particularly known for his special expertise in advertising technology and technology transactions, and awareness of the latest legal and industry trends. He routinely negotiates complex deals involving data flows, such as clean room agreements, data licensing/matching agreements, and media buy insertion orders. He performs due diligence on the use of SDKs and other tracking technologies, and evaluates app platform compliance, including with Apple's App Tracking Transparency (ATT) and privacy manifest requirements. Daniel is highly involved with ad tech industry efforts to address contractual, accountability, and opt-out obligations, including through working closely with the Interactive Advertising Bureau (IAB). He also serves as a Vice President on the Board of Directors for the International Advertising Association (IAA) and helped IAA and the Global Advertising Lawyers Alliance (GALA) publish the first-ever global guide on the impact of privacy laws on marketing and advertising. Daniel is certified as an Information Privacy Professional (CIPP/US) and admitted to practice in California. He is a graduate of UCLA and USC Law. Prior to joining the Firm, he worked in Big Law and separately was involved in the launch of a fintech startup, which was acquired by a multi-national corporation.

Featured in Financial Services Regulation (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Former FINRA and SEC regulator Emily Gordy represents broker-dealers, investment advisers, fintech companies and other financial institutions in government and regulatory investigations and enforcement actions involving complex regulatory issues. Clients benefit from Emily's profound knowledge of securities laws and deep ties with the regulatory community to bring their matters to a successful resolution. Ms. Gordy's practice covers the full suite of securities enforcement and compliance issues impacting the financial services industry. She advises on matters involving anti-money laundering ("AML"), Regulation Best Interest, supervision, conflicts of interest, disclosures, books and records, and registration and licensing issues, including statutory disqualifications. Emily fiercely advocates on behalf of clients before government agencies and self-regulatory organizations, where her goal is always to avoid enforcement action while protecting her clients' business interests. She also partners with clients to identify and address gaps in their global compliance systems to prevent future regulatory scrutiny.

The group's development and trial capabilities were featured in a 2016 article in The Recorder. Mr. Grant is a Fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers and has successfully tried over 30 patent and IP cases to verdict. Mr. Grant has secured high-profile wins for companies established and emerging, including NVIDIA, Schlumberger, Philip Morris International, Adobe, Monsanto, Daiichi, Latchable, CrossMatch Technologies, InfoBionic, and InterDigital. He served as lead counsel for C.R. Bard; after a six-week trial in the US District Court of Arizona, the jury found that W.L. Gore willfully infringed Bard's patent and upheld validity. The court enhanced damages, awarded fees, and imposed a compulsory license. The total award was over US$2.1 billion and the win was featured in a cover article in the November 2009 issue of The American Lawyer. Mr. Grant joined Latham in 2002, after serving as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations during Operation Enduring Freedom. In 2005, he was appointed by the Secretary of Commerce to the Patent Public Advisory Committee, a nine-member board that advises the Director of the US Patent and Trademark Office on patent policy. Before attending law school, Mr. Grant served as an aide to Senator John McCain, a Navy SEAL team leader and a US Marine. He is the co-inventor of two patents.

Featured in Tax (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Kat Gregor advises clients on tax dispute resolution and litigation across a variety of forums, including administrative proceedings, federal and state courts, and international arbitration. Ms. Gregor represents corporate clients spanning a broad range of industries, including retail, entertainment, energy, technology, communications, financial services and manufacturing. Her work in the financial services industry includes counseling fintech and other blockchain companies, asset managers (and related investment funds) and financial institutions. She also advises high-net-worth individuals to resolve inquiries by tax authorities into matters involving estate tax, residency and domicile, and reporting of foreign and digital assets. Known for her innovative approach to resolving tax disputes, clients regularly turn to Ms. Gregor for achieving favorable negotiated outcomes beyond traditional paths to court. Ms. Gregor also is experienced in advising on complex cross-border investment structures in the context of tax disputes, which she frequently encounters when counseling on bilateral and multilateral investment treaty disputes with non-U.S. tax authorities and overseeing strategy for managing controversies involving foreign tax authorities. In connection with these types of disputes, she has been involved in several major international arbitration matters. She also works closely with non-U.S. counsel in coordinating the defense of multijurisdictional inquiries, including through competent authority proceedings. Ms. Gregor also has significant experience advising clients in the asset management industry. She has counseled private investment fund managers on forming new asset management firms and organizing and launching investment funds, and in ongoing fund investment and secondary transactions. In this capacity, she has advised on a variety of cross-border investment structures, including the formation of co-investment vehicles for private-equity backed acquisitions, the expansion of financial institutions into new jurisdictions and the tax implications of inbound investments into the United States. Ms. Gregor counsels founders of firms on the tax aspects of compensating investment professionals, estate planning and sales of management companies. She also represents family offices on their structure, ongoing operations and investments, often in connection with seeding new asset managers, investing in novel industries and financial products, and engaging in impact investing. Career: Prior to joining Skadden, she served as the co-founder of the tax controversy practice at another leading law firm.

Professional Memberships:

Ms. Gregor serves within a variety of leadership capacities in the tax community, including as an officer of the International Bar Association Taxes Committee; the northeast regional chair of the Women of International Fiscal Association Network; and co-chair of the joint ABA Tax Section, IBA Taxes Committee and IFA-USA Branch U.S.-Europe Tax Practice Trends Conference. She also was elected as a fellow of the American College of Tax Counsel in 2021.

Personal: Ms. Gregor maintains an active pro bono practice. For several years, she assisted the Human Trafficking Legal Center in resolving clients' litigation in order to minimize the tax impact of settlement awards to human trafficking victims. She also is a co-chair of the tax working group of the Law Firm Antiracism Alliance. In addition to being repeatedly recognized by Chambers USA, Chambers High Net Worth and The Best Lawyers in America, among other leading legal directories for her practice nationwide, Ms. Gregor was named to Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly's 2022 list of Go To Lawyers for Taxation, which recognizes top lawyers based across the commonwealth. She also was selected as one of Boston Magazine's Top Lawyers in 2023 and 2022, honoring the "top law professionals in Greater Boston."

Career: Sean Hecker is a partner at Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP. He is recognized nationally as a leading trial lawyer, with a practice focusing on white collar criminal defense, government and internal investigations, complex civil litigation, and regulatory compliance. Sean's practice includes representing officers, directors and corporations, across various industries, in grand jury and regulatory investigations, including those conducted by the Department of Justice, Securities and Exchange Commission, Commodities Futures Trading Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Internal Revenue Service, and federal and state banking regulators and state law enforcement agencies. He also regularly represents companies and individuals in matters concerning alleged securities and commodities fraud, market manipulation, corruption (including the FCPA), accounting fraud, money laundering, tax fraud, and antitrust violations, and he handles a wide variety of civil litigation for both large and small corporations and private firms. Sean is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers, one of North America's premier legal associations. Chambers USA and Chambers Global have also ranked Sean as one of the leading trial lawyers in the country and globally, describing him as "winning universal acclaim for his sophisticated practice." Sean is ranked by Chambers as "Band 1" among white collar defense lawyers in New York, and he is also nationally ranked by Chambers for his work on FCPA matters. Sources describe Sean to Chambers as "truly one of the most gifted trial lawyers," calling him a "terrific," "pragmatic and down-to-earth," "first-rate attorney," who is "trustworthy beyond any question" and whose "judgment is unfailingly good." Clients note that Sean is "extremely well respected by people on all sides and is one of the best in the white-collar space," and a "very tenacious advocate." "He is extremely knowledgeable about the law and applies it in a very practical way." Sean was named 2020 White Collar Crime/Investigations/Enforcement Attorney of the Year and 2024 White Collar Crime/Investigations Litigator of the Year by Benchmark Litigation, which has also recognized him for many years as among the Top 100 Trial Lawyers in the country. He was recently named a Leading Individual by Who's Who Legal ("WWL") in their Investigations rankings, with sources recognizing Sean as "a super-strategic and sharp advocate" who provides "practical and strong advice" to clients in complex investigations. WWL also named Sean as a Global Thought Leader in "Business Crime Defense-Individuals." The Legal 500 US similarly rated Sean as a leading lawyer in corporate investigations and white collar criminal defense, describing him as "incredibly smart and [he has] great experience." Sean was named an Elite Boutique Trailblazer and Winning Litigator by The National Law Journal, a White Collar MVP by Law360, a Best Lawyer in America in the field of Criminal Defense: White Collar, a Leading Lawyer in America by Lawdragon, and a Thought Leader by Global Investigations Review. In one particularly notable matter, Global Investigations Review honored Sean's work in U.S. v. Bogucki by naming the case its 2019 "Most Important Court Case of the Year." Serving as lead counsel to Robert Bogucki, who was accused of orchestrating an alleged $6 billion fraudulent scheme, Sean secured a rare acquittal at the conclusion of the Government's case. Finding that no jury could reasonably convict Bogucki on the evidence presented, the presiding judge noted that he had never granted such an acquittal in his twenty years on the bench. Sean maintains an active pro bono practice, including successfully securing a temporary restraining order that restored legal visitation rights at the Metropolitan Detention Center in Brooklyn, NY after visits had been suspended in violation of the constitutional right to counsel. He also successfully represented two New York State elected officials who were assaulted, pepper sprayed, and had their right to protest aggressively curtailed by the New York Police Department at a protest in Brooklyn. Prior to joining KHF, Sean was a partner at Debevoise & Plimpton,

LLP and a trial lawyer with the Federal Defenders of New York. As a Federal Defender, Sean defended individuals charged in the SDNY with a wide range of federal offenses and handled numerous trials and hearings. Sean was a law clerk for the Honorable John M. Walker, Jr., U.S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, and for the Honorable Sidney H. Stein for the SDNY. Featured in Government (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Bruce Heiman engages in a wide-ranging federal counseling and lobbying practice. He has represented leading companies and trade associations in technology, financial services, postal, trade, transportation, and manufacturing industries. He is nationally ranked as a top government relations lawyer by both Chambers USA and The Legal 500. His clients praise him for his strategic advice and for his ability to build coalitions. Bruce regularly assists clients design and implement a Washington, D.C. "game plan" to protect and promote their interests before Congress and federal departments and agencies. He helps them pursue legislation, implement enacted laws, and achieve their objectives in industry meetings as well as government negotiations. He also often helps clients assemble and advocate on behalf of a coalition of parties with similar objectives, including interest groups and think tanks. Bruce has successfully worked to protect and promote American physical and digital communications and commerce. He was extensively involved in the passage of the last two major postal reform laws (the most recent in 2022) that supported a robust U.S. Postal Service delivering mail and packages six days a week. He also has twice helped the Internet become and remain what it is today -- first by permitting the use of strong encryption and later ensuring that the domain name system continued to be governed by stakeholders and not governments. He has also assisted a range of companies understand the laws and policies applying to their Internet and e-commerce activities and has worked to ensure that efforts to promote cyber security and protect critical information infrastructure are market-driven and industry-led. In the face of the COVID-19 crisis, he worked to ensure that companies providing essential services could continue to operate; obtain emergency funding for the US Postal Service so that it could continue providing reliable and affordable mail and package deliveries nationwide; and review and advise on safe back to work protocols. He previously served on the firm's management committee and was practice area leader for the policy and regulatory practice for the last dozen years. He served as legislative director and trade counsel to U.S. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York from 1984 to 1987. He first joined the firm in 1980 after graduating with degrees in law and public policy from Harvard Law School and Harvard's Kennedy School of Government. Bruce is a member and previously served on the board of the Capitol Historical Society.

Featured in Leisure & Hospitality (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Jeffrey A. Horwitz is a partner in Proskauer's Corporate Department where he co-heads our Private Equity Real Estate practice and runs our internationally recognized Hospitality, Gaming & Leisure Group. He also has served as co-head of Mergers & Acquisitions and as a member of our Executive Committee. Jeff is a general corporate and securities lawyer with broad-based experience in mergers and acquisitions, cross-border transactions, and long-term joint ventures. He is regularly engaged to advise boards, management teams and investors on strategic matters, from litigation to personnel to transactions. Jeff counsels clients on the full range of their activities, from seed capital to public offerings, acquisitions and operational matters, often acting as outside general counsel. He represents major financial institutions, sovereign wealth funds, private equity and family offices in sophisticated financial and other transactions. He has handled deals aggregating nearly $200 billion in value, including tender offers, "going-private" transactions, IPOs, restructuring and structured finance transactions, and mergers and acquisitions in industries as diverse as biotechnology and aerospace, retail and cable television, and education and scrap metal. He regularly handles transactions outside the U.S., including Europe, the Middle East, Asia, Latin America, Australia, South Africa and India. Leading our Private Equity Real Estate group, he works with a team of 75 lawyers from across the firm advising on complex transactions and disputes relating to real estate, and particularly hotels. Jeff has handled virtually every type of matter, and has worked with virtually every major player in these industries, including transactions for nearly 4,000 hotels comprising more than 300,000 rooms and involving nearly $15 billion. His experience, both in and outside the U.S., extends to hotel and casino development and construction; private clubs, nightclubs, restaurants; theme parks; portfolio and single-property acquisitions; sales and restructurings; financings; management; marketing; reservations systems; litigation counseling and strategic planning; and ancillary services. This breadth of work is key to executing complex and sophisticated transactions, such as the acquisition and sale of branded hotel chains (Fairmont, Raffles, Swissotel, sbe Entertainment, Regent, Motel 6, Red Roof Inns, 21c Museum Hotels, TRIBE, LINE, Saguaro), strategic investments and other arrangements (Huazhu, Faena, Banyan Tree), and REIT transactions (Hospitality Investors Trust, Eagle Hospitality). As a senior member of our Entertainment Group, Jeff represents The Broadway League (the national trade association for Broadway theatre), the Tony Awards®, and various other joint venture events and producers. In the media industry, Jeff has advised on the acquisition and sale of television, radio, newspaper and magazine properties, and the acquisition and sale of advertising, promotion and marketing agencies, and related joint ventures. He also advises rights holders, including our long-time clients The Leonard Bernstein Office and The George Balanchine Trusts. He leads our team representing TSG Entertainment in film-slate financing deals. Jeff also frequently represents start-up and development-stage companies, as well as established "traditional" businesses, in online, Internet-related or technology businesses. He has handled organizational and structuring matters, venture capital and other equity placements, restructurings (from "down" rounds to recapitalizations to M&A solutions). He has both company-side and investor experience. As a frequent speaker at real estate and hospitality events, Jeff regularly presents at The Nolan School of Hotel Administration at Cornell's SC Johnson College of Business, NYU's Jonathan M. Tisch Center of Hospitality, and on M&A and investment matters at lodging investment conferences around the world, including the NYU Hospitality Industry Investment Conference in New York, Americas Lodging Investment Summit in Los Angeles, the International Hotel Investment Forum in Berlin and the Hotel Investment Conference Asia-Pacific in Hong Kong. Jeff is a member of the American Hotel & Lodging Association (AHLA) Hospitality Investment Roundtable and IREFAC (Industry Real Estate Financing Advisory Council), as well as the Advisory Board of the Cornell Center for Real Estate and Finance and has served as a member of the Editorial Board of the Cornell Hotel and Restaurant Administration Quarterly and a member of the Advisory Board of the Cornell Center for Hospitality Research. He is a director of The New York Hospitality Council, Inc., a not-for-profit forum for hospitality industry leaders, and is a member of the Real Estate Capital Policy Advisory Committee of The Real Estate Roundtable. He also has served as a director of the America-Israel Chamber of Commerce, and as a member of the French-American Chamber of Commerce in the U.S. and the American Society of Corporate Secretaries. He was the Chairman of the Board of Labyrinth Theater Company and a director of The Jewish Community Center in Manhattan for more than 15 years, a member of the Executive Committee of the Lawyers' Division of UJA-Federation for more than five years and an officer of the Henry Kaufmann Foundation for more than a dozen years. He was a founder and chairman of The American Playwriting Foundation. He currently serves as Chairman of the Board of Building for the Arts and is a member of the Board of Directors of StreetSquash. He also served as a Vice Chair of the Associates' Campaign for The Legal Aid Society. Jeff has been with the firm for his entire career and lives in Manhattan and Connecticut.

Featured in Appellate Law (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Paul Hughes is the co-head of the Firm's practices focusing on Supreme Court & Appellate Litigation as well as Government & Regulatory Litigation. He briefs and argues complex appeals, and he develops legal strategy before trial courts, including strategic affirmative litigation. Paul serves as an elected member of the Firm's Management Committee. An experienced appellate lawyer, Paul has argued 10 times at the US Supreme Court, most recently in January 2023. Having presented more than 80 arguments, Paul has appeared before en banc sittings of the Fourth, Fifth, Ninth and Tenth Circuits; panels of the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, DC and Federal Circuits; several state appellate courts; and state and federal trial courts across the country. Paul is a visiting clinical lecturer in law at the Yale Law School, where he co-directs Yale's Supreme Court Advocacy Clinic. In listing Paul in its nationwide rating of appellate lawyers, Chambers USA (2022) notes that he "play[s] 3D chess in litigation strategy" and "will learn your business better than you know it." In ranking Paul as a "Leading Lawyer" in appellate practice, The Legal 500 (2021) describes Paul as "exceptionally professional, effective, and easy to work with," an "intellectually impressive and skilled advocate," and it explains that he "demonstrates a surprisingly high policy awareness that sets him apart in Washington." Recent successes at the Supreme Court include Kisor v. Wilkie, a landmark administrative law case decided in June 2019 that imposes significant limitations on the scope of agency deference. Paul has won a trio of cases expanding the scope of judicial review of agency actions in the context of immigration: In 2023, he unanimously prevailed in Santos-Zacaria v. Garland, and in 2020 he won both Nasrallah v. Barr and Guerrero-Lasprilla v. Barr. In Nasrallah, Paul advanced a statutory interpretation argument that had been overlooked by all ten courts of appeals to have previously addressed the issue. In 2018, Paul secured a 9-0 win in the bankruptcy case Lamar, Archer & Cofrin, LLP v. Appling, which presented a technical question of statutory interpretation. In 2022, Paul secured victory against the SEC, setting aside its unlawful suspension of a 2020 Rule governing proxy voting advice businesses in National Association of Manufacturers v. SEC. And in 2021, Paul won complete victory invalidating four separate regulations designed to disrupt the high-skilled immigration ecosystem in U.S. Chamber of Commerce v. DHS. Paul works across substantive areas of law. He frequently litigates challenges to administrative agency action, especially with respect to the life science industry, energy, immigration, and taxation. In 2018, Law360 named Paul an "MVP" for his intellectual property work before the Federal Circuit. Paul also has deep experience with the False Claims Act, bankruptcy, civil rights, and securities law. Paul served as a law clerk to the Honorable Diana Gribbon Motz of the US Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. He was a senior editor of the Yale Law Journal. Featured in International Trade (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Tom Jarvis chairs Winston's ITC practice and has the highest-level rankings in all the major ranking directories. Clients say he is "a terrific lawyer and a highly valued partner," Chambers USA highlights his "depth of knowledge second to none," and he was named to the inaugural

Legal 500 Hall of Fame for ITC patent litigation. Tom is a former Senior Investigative Attorney at the ITC. Over the past 34 years, Tom has totaled more than 150 trial days as lead trial counsel across more than 60 ITC Section 337 cases. Tom has a top-tier rating for his ITC representation of an "array of technology sector clients" (Chambers USA), including leading designers and manufacturers of telecommunications equipment, smartphones, microprocessors, digital signal processors, memory device, networking equipment, semiconductor fabrication processes and packaging, and various operating systems and application software. His ITC cases also extend to diverse technologies such as medical devices, industrial equipment, design automation tools, alkaline batteries, and a wide variety of consumer products. Chambers USA praises Tom's "excellent track record at the ITC" and describes him as "an expert at the unique procedures of the ITC and very in tune with the mindset within the ITC." He is warmly lauded by commentators, who say that "the ITC is a high-stakes, high-pressure environment and Tom is a master of that environment. He makes everything run smoothly, from pre-litigation work to post-trial procedures" (Chambers USA). At Winston, Tom has led a successful Comcast ITC defense against Rovi/Tivo through trial, two Ericsson ITC cases against Apple that included a trial resulting in a settlement, and two Taiwanese semiconductor company cases against Spansion that settled favorably after trial in the ITC; defended Ericsson in the ITC against Adapix/Acacia; and supervised a variety of smaller cases. Previously, Tom led the defense of Research In Motion (BlackBerry) that invalidated the Kodak patent that had earlier extracted about $1 billion in royalties from Korean cell phone manufacturers in a prior ITC case. He also led multiple HTC, S3 Graphics, and VIA Technologies cases through trial against Apple. Tom has also represented Action Semiconductor, Atheros, BIAx, Broadcom, Everex, Gold Peak, Hitachi, LG, Nikon, Nippon Steel, Seoul Semiconductor, Sony, Tate & Lyle, and Tyco in patent litigations at the ITC. No other single person has held the top election law roles in the legislative, regulatory, political and private practice contexts during their careers. He created the very constructs which continue to govern the body of law still being implemented today—dating back to the 1979 amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act and has created new and innovative solutions throughout his 50-year career including the “hybrid advertisement.” Tom has served as Chairman of the Federal Election Commission, the Chief Counsel of the National Republican Congressional Committee, the Chief Counsel of the Republican National Committee, General Counsel to Presidential Campaigns including Bush/Cheney 2004, Presidential Inaugural Committees, and National Political Conventions. By the time of his appointment by President Reagan to the Federal Election Commission in 1985, Tom had already served on the Commission for four years as special deputy to the Secretary of the United States Senate, representing the Secretary as a full-time, ex officio commissioner at the FEC. His seminal role in the election law world actually began 10 years earlier as special counsel to the minority of the United States House Committee on House Administration from 1977 to 1979, where he assisted Republican members in proposing and amending election law legislation, resulting in the passage of the 1979 amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act. Clerkship/Government Experience: Chief Counsel of the Republican National Committee General Counsel for Bush-Cheney '04 General Counsel to the 55th Presidential Inaugural Committee Commissioner, Federal Election Commission Chairman during the 1988 presidential election Vice Chairman of the FEC and Chairman of the Finance Committee in 1987 Special Deputy to the Secretary of the Senate from 1981 to 1985 Special Counsel to the Minority of the Committee on House Administration from 1977 to 1979 Counsel to the National Republican Congressional Committee from 1977 to 1980 Legislative Assistant to U.S. Rep. Alex is deeply experienced in copyright, trademark, advertising, right of publicity, and trade secrets law. A seasoned courtroom lawyer, Alex has over two decades of experience litigating high-stakes cases in all of these disciplines, with particular focus in the music industry. Outside of the courtroom, Alex provides daily counsel to his clients on legal questions that affect key business decisions. Clients turn to Alex for his unique blend of litigation skills and comprehensive knowledge of IP law, which allows him to effectively and efficiently bring value to his clients as the first and only call they need to make on rights-related legal and business issues. In copyright and media-related matters, Alex has represented many music, sports, and entertainment clients in a wide variety of engagements touching on all forms of copyrightable subject matter. Alex frequently represents record labels and music publishers in mass infringement cases against internet service providers and social media platforms. Representing defendants, Alex has won multiple high-profile cases on summary judgment, often prevailing on the factually intensive issue of lack of substantial similarity. On behalf of Madonna and Warner Music Group, he convinced the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals to reject the Sixth Circuit's controversial Bridgeport decision governing liability for music sampling. Alex has represented all of the major and many independent music publishers and record labels, recording artists including Madonna, Lady Gaga, and U2, and clients in academic publishing, including Elsevier, Lexis/Nexis, and STM. Alex speaks frequently on noteworthy issues in copyright law and was featured in a Planet Money podcast discussing the knotty issue of fair use. In trademark and false advertising matters, Alex has represented clients in numerous industries, including consumer products, fashion, entertainment, food & beverage, and healthcare before the federal courts, the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB), and the National Advertising Division (NAD) of the Council of the Better Business Bureau. He has represented both plaintiffs and defendants in Lanham Act cases in courts across the country, including in multiple preliminary injunction hearings and jury trials. Beyond litigation, Alex frequently counsels clients concerning advertising and marketing claim substantiation and review. Alex's trademark and advertising clients have included Colgate Palmolive, Church & Dwight, S.C. Johnson & Son, ZeroWater, OK GO, the NFL, Major League Baseball, and Diageo. Alex spent the first 20 years of his career at Proskauer Rose, where he was a partner in the firm's Litigation Department.

Career: A partner with Cooper Levenson and Co-Chair of the Gaming Law Practice Group, Lynne Levin Kaufman concentrates on complex land-based casino law, iGaming and sports wagering law, and mergers and acquisitions in the gaming industry. Atlantic City's newest casinos across the nation select Lynne as counsel to guide them in all gaming matters, from the pre-development and pre-construction stages until opening day. Large casino companies, iGaming companies, and sports wagering companies entering new jurisdictions turn to Lynne to draft proposed statutory language and regulations. Lynne Levin Kaufman has been practicing gaming law full-time for decades, first as in-house counsel to a publicly-owned New Jersey casino company, then joining Cooper Levenson. Lynne's clients include land-based casinos, interactive gaming operators, sports wagering operators, lottery courier services, gaming manufacturers, technology and content providers, financial institutions, private equity firms, nightclubs and payment processors. Lynne's practice encompasses all aspects of gaming law, including licensure, regulatory compliance, appearances before regulatory bodies, drafting financing documentation and obtaining required approvals, contract drafting, policy/plan drafting and transactional work. Lynne has significant experience regarding gaming mergers and acquisitions and complex financing transactions, and her clients rely on her for strategic advice. In addition to representation of public companies, she also represents privately owned casinos and their owners. Lynne's interactive gaming and sports wagering clients depend on her to guide them through the multijurisdictional licensing and go-live requirements of new jurisdictions, and to provide legislative and regulatory input to help shape the law, regulation and policy. She also advises clients regarding pari-mutuel betting, skilled gaming and promotional sweepstakes and contests. She guides her land-based, iGaming and sports wagering clients through the gaming laboratory approval process.

KENNEDY, Nicholas O.
Baker McKenzie, Dallas
Featured in International Arbitration (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: At the trial level, Nick has recovered nearly a billion dollars for his clients. His clients have avoided claims for many hundred million more through successful defense verdicts or arbitration awards. Nick also argued and won at the United States Supreme Court in Yegiazaryan v. Smagin, a case about an international RICO conspiracy to prevent enforcement of a $150 million arbitration award. Nick's success has been widely recognized. He was named as a 2023 40 Under 40 honoree by Bloomberg News. He was also one of just a dozen finalists for the National Law Journal's Winning Litigator award, which honors the most significant nationwide victories in 2022 and 2023. Unlike many others at large law firms, Nick regularly tries high-stakes cases – at least one per year, and often more.

These cases have regularly had tens of millions, hundreds of millions, and in one case more than a billion dollars in dispute. Nick has first chaired multiple arbitrations with more than $100 million in controversy. While Nick thrives at trial, he also has a successful pre-and post-trial practice with scores of successful dispositive and expert motions, along with appeals all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court. Nick is a dedicated mentor to others, helping to guide several younger attorneys through their first trials, depositions, and hearings. He is also a member of Baker McKenzie's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Committee through which he most recently led the Dallas office's partnership with the Street Law program where more than a dozen Baker McKenzie professionals taught legal concepts and provided career counseling to more than fifty local high school students. Nick's practice crosses industry and borders. He focuses heavily on the software, technology franchise, and consumer goods industries. Nick uses his ability to make complex technologies simple for jurors and arbitrators to represent technology owners in disputes about trade secrets, software performance, and contractual issues. He adeptly handles complicated financial concepts to represent business owners and partners in complex valuation, investment fraud, and fiduciary duty disputes. Nick regularly handles the damages portion of all types of complex cases, working closely with experts to do so. Nick also has a strong background with trade secrets and non-competes across industries, allowing him to help his clients protect their own IP and employees and defend against claims of misuse by others. Nick routinely represents foreign clients in US disputes, or US clients in foreign disputes. He has arbitrated cases with all major arbitral institutions, including the ICC, ICDR, ICSID, UNCITRAL, JAMS, SCC, AAA, and LCIA. He has acted on behalf of investors against states in investor-state disputes under ICSID, UNCITRAL, LCIA, and SCC Arbitration Rules and in related enforcement proceedings. He has handled disputes in or related to several dozen countries. This diverse experience helps Nick to advise clients on how to craft appropriate dispute resolution clauses when drafting contracts, and how to maximize their benefits when a dispute arises. Finally, Nick's international experience includes a strong track record of enforcing foreign judgments or arbitration awards in the US and abroad, including identifying and collecting upon assets of uncooperative debtors.

Colleen frequently publishes on complex eDiscovery issues and is highly sought after for speaking engagements on these issues. She also teaches an eDiscovery class at DePaul University College of Law. Colleen is the current co-chair of the Annual Judicial Training Symposium for Federal Judges on behalf of the Electronic Discovery Institute board of directors and the Federal Judicial Center. Colleen has more than 30 years of experience representing clients as first chair in complex mass tort, products liability, financial, securities, and antitrust class action litigation. As an experienced litigator who has litigated cases across many disparate industries, Colleen combines her extensive experience and knowledge to craft efficient and creative solutions for her clients. Colleen has successfully argued a significant number of motions at all stages of litigation, including complex Daubert motions, class certification, and discovery motion practice. Her trial experience includes fact and expert witnesses. She excels at having a practical and inclusive approach at all stages of a case, ensuring that strategic decisions regarding discovery are considered and resolved in light of the substantive issues in the litigation from the very start of the case. Colleen is able to use her learnings from her wide breadth of subject matter in class actions to innovate, bringing successful ideas from one area to another. Currently, Colleen, among other cases, is running a large antitrust and breach of contract case. And was recently the first chair for various explosion and fire cases, leading a team of lawyers and expert witnesses that resulted in a successful resolution of all matters. She, along with the Sidley team, settled the class of about 28,000 residents of the town for far less than Plaintiffs originally sought. Immediately before that, she ran a multi-year employment class action case where she was able to reduce the client's costs significantly by proposing to the Court a case management methodology most often seen in products cases. That matter settled for a small fraction of the original demand, in large part due to successfully defeating class certification.

Featured in Antitrust (USA – Nationwide), Sports Law (USA – Nationwide), Antitrust (New York)

Practice Areas: Co-Executive Chairman of Winston & Strawn, Jeffrey Kessler is one of the world's leading antitrust, sports law, and trial lawyers. He has served as lead counsel in some of the most complex antitrust, sports, and intellectual property litigations in the country, including major jury trials, and has represented a number of U.S. and international companies in criminal and civil investigations in the antitrust, sports law, trade, and Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) areas. Jeffrey co-chairs Winston's global Antitrust/Competition Practice and is the former co-chair of the firm's Sports Law Practice. Law360 recently named both practices as a "Practice Group of the Year" for their respective categories. He focuses his practice on all aspects of antitrust/competition, sports law, complex commercial litigation, intellectual property (IP), and government criminal and civil investigations. He has served as lead counsel in some of the most complex antitrust, sports law, and IP law cases in the country, including major jury trials, and has represented many U.S. and international companies in criminal and civil investigations in the antitrust, trade, and Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) areas. He successfully defended Matsushita and JVC against claims of a worldwide conspiracy in the landmark U.S. Supreme Court case Zenith v. Matsushita and is regarded universally as a leading commentator on international antitrust law. He has also been the lead counsel for important cases involving frontier issues of IP law and lead counsel in numerous government criminal and civil investigations. He is a member of the firm's Videogame, Gaming, and Esports Group, which provides comprehensive legal solutions to companies in the sector. Jeffrey is also one of the United States' most prominent lawyers regularly engaged in high-profile sports litigation. He has litigated some of the most famous sports-antitrust cases in history, including the landmark college players-brought Alston v. NCAA case, in which, following Jeffrey's oral argument, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously affirmed his and co-counsel's earlier "groundbreaking and disruptive" trial victory against the NCAA in this antitrust challenge to its non-compensation rules; McNeil v. The NFL, the watershed antitrust jury trial that led to the establishment of free agency in the National Football League (NFL); and Brady v. NFL, which led to the end of the 2011 NFL lockout. Jeffrey's sports sector clients have included the NFL Players Association (NFLPA), the National Basketball Players Association (NBPA), the Arena Football League Players Association, the National Hockey League Players Association, the Major League Baseball Players Association, the National Invitation Tournament (NIT), Wasserman Media Group, SCP Worldwide, MVP Sports, the U.S. Women's National [Soccer] Team (USWNT), the NFL Coaches Association, the Women's Tennis League Association, Endeavor, Super Slam Ltd., Activision Blizzard, Adidas, Klutch Sports, and Players, Inc. Jeffrey has represented various classes of Division 1 college basketball and football players; other college athletes; elite swimmers; NBA, NFL, AFL, and MLS players; the North American Soccer League (NASL); the U.S. Football League; the Overwatch and Call of Duty Esports leagues; the Professional Bull Riders; Relevant Sports Agency, and the Cities of San Diego and Oakland, as well as Alameda County, in various sports law disputes. He negotiated the current free agency/salary cap systems in the NFL and NBA, and successfully represented Latrell Sprewell in his controversial suspension arbitration. In the area of NFL discipline, he represented the NFLPA on behalf of Ray Rice, Tom Brady (in "Deflategate"), Ezekiel Elliott, Adrian Peterson, and the "Bountygate" players. He represented pro bono Oscar Pistorius, the double-amputee athlete, in his successful arbitration to obtain the right to compete against non-disabled athletes around the world. Recently, he achieved a landmark equal pay class action settlement for the members of the USWNT. This impressive experience led Law360 to name Jeffrey as an MVP for Sports and Betting for four consecutive years (2018–2021). In March 2022 at the Benchmark Litigation East Coast Awards, Jeffrey was honored as the Antitrust Litigator of the Year, and the firm was recognized for its work on NCAA v. Alston, one of the National Impact Cases of the Year. And Jeffrey is part of the group recognized with GCR's 2022 "Litigation of the Year: Cartel Prosecution" award.

Practice Areas: E-Discovery & Information Governance

Career: CAREER Christopher Q. King, Partner at Redgrave LLP, is recognized as a leader in information law and has devoted his practice to discovery, eDiscovery, and information governance. He serves as the lead attorney for several of the Firm's key clients, advising on their eDiscovery and information governance needs. Chris oversees the development of discovery strategy in complex litigation and investigation matters and has briefed and argued eDiscovery motions in dozens of federal and state court cases. Chris deeply understands the connection between information governance and eDiscovery and works with clients to develop holistic solutions that consider both practices. By building a solid foundation of information governance policies and procedures, organizations improve efficiencies, reduce risk, and put themselves in a better position to strategically handle eDiscovery issues. Robust information governance practices can provide a roadmap to how and where data is stored, streamlining time and resources during early case assessment. Chris also shows clients how eDiscovery approaches and outcomes can influence and reinforce information governance, including standardizing legal hold policies, investing in approaches and tools for preservation and collection, and being diligent about data minimization and defensible disposition. In his information governance matters, Chris plays a pivotal role in counseling clients on a broad range of information governance issues, including leading large-scale assessments of existing information governance and eDiscovery processes and programs. He advises clients on defensible disposition projects, including system and hardware decommissioning and physical record remediation, and counsels on the defensibility of large-scale data migrations and conversions. Chris helps clients develop data retention, management, and disposition protocols, customized litigation hold processes, bring your own device (BYOD) policies, defensible employee and technology onboarding and offboarding processes, network use policies, and create and update record management policies and schedules. In his eDiscovery matters, Chris leverages his extensive background litigating class actions, multidistrict litigation, and other types of complex litigation to identify, develop, and execute practical eDiscovery approaches that support the merits of a case. He has managed all stages of the discovery process, from document production to briefing and arguing matters in court, and has represented clients in the insurance, banking, securities, manufacturing, retail, technology, pharmaceuticals, chemicals, energy, and healthcare sectors. Chris regularly develops preservation plans, negotiates electronically stored information ("ESI") protocols, and prepares and defends fact and corporate representative witnesses with respect to discovery-related issues. He has also acted as a special master and discovery neutral in contentious litigation matters and assisted with expert witness testimony. Whether in court, writing briefs, or negotiating on behalf of a client, Chris prides himself on being a hands-on attorney, recognizing the strong link between eDiscovery and litigation strategy. Chambers USA and Chambers Global recognize Chris as a leading eDiscovery and information governance lawyer. He is also recognized by Who's Who Legal for Litigation: eDiscovery Lawyers. He is a sought-after speaker, panelist, and presenter, participating at The Sedona Conference®, EDI Leadership Summit, and the Georgetown Advanced E-Discovery Institute as an authority on eDiscovery and information governance. Before joining Redgrave LLP, Chris was a Partner at Dentons, where he founded and led the eDiscovery and Information Governance practice for the U.S. region. Chris was also clerk to Robert Murphy, Chief Judge, Court of Appeals of Maryland. Chris is admitted to practice in Illinois, before the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Third and Seventh Circuits, and in the Northern and Central Districts of Illinois, and the Eastern District of Michigan.

LEWIS, Brian
Drummond Woodsum, Portland
Featured in Native American Law (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Brian Lewis is an experienced attorney whose practice is devoted to tribal economic development and the protection and promotion of tribal powers, rights, and interests. He represents tribes, tribal enterprises, tribal member-owned businesses, and non-tribal private corporations doing business in Indian Country in collaboration with tribes and tribal enterprises. Mr. Lewis litigates federal Indian law and commercial matters, and much of his practice concerns complex jurisdictional disputes and taxation and regulatory preemption issues. Mr. Lewis also has extensive experience in performing virtually all aspects of sensitive, high-level commercial and financial transactions, particularly those involving sovereign stakeholders and components. He advises and represents clients in a range of areas, including energy, commercial, corporate, construction, tourism, finance, and gaming matters. He also directs and manages securing energy leases and rights-of-way on federal, state, private, tribal trust, and allotted lands for large projects and transactions. Mr. Lewis has deep transactional, regulatory, and litigation experience in complex matters involving tribes, states, and the federal government that allows him to effectively promote the interests of tribes and tribal enterprises in a wide range of commercial, financial, jurisdictional, and governmental matters. In his dynamic and interdisciplinary practice, he brings experience to understand the challenges and opportunities unique to tribal nations and matters that concern tribes and a focused, analytical approach to solving problems and resolving issues in every matter and all circumstances, with the primary aim of protecting and promoting tribal interests.

Career: Brian Lewis began his career as an attorney with the Navajo Nation Department of Justice, where he handled special matters for the Attorney General and Deputy Attorney General of the Navajo Nation. While with the Department of Justice and Office of the Attorney General, he represented the Navajo Nation as lead counsel in numerous federal, state, and tribal administrative, trial, and appellate cases, including, Navajo Nation v. RJN Construction Mgmt., Inc., et al., Ctr. for Biological Diversity, et al. v. Pizarchik et al., Diné C.A.R.E., et al. v. Salazar, et al., and Navajo Nation v. Urban Outfitters. He also served as the lead attorney in the Navajo Nation's creation of a new commercial instrumentality, Navajo Transitional Energy Company, LLC, the acquisition and merger of all assets and interests of an international mining company, and the negotiation of eight and nine-figure transactions for the company's operations. He served as a member of several teams, commissions, and task forces, including, the Speaker of the Navajo Nation Council's Energy Task Force, the President of the Navajo Nation's project negotiation and transaction teams for large-scale economic development projects, and the New Mexico Governor-elect's Transition Team's Indian Affairs Department Review Committee. In private practice, Mr. Lewis has continued to represent Navajo Nation political subdivisions and commercial instrumentalities, as well as corporate entities working collaboratively with the Navajo Nation, as a part of his overall representation of tribes, tribal enterprises, public utilities, and private companies. He serves as outside general counsel to several tribal enterprises and private entities, for which he handles and oversees all litigation and transactional matters impacting their operations. He represents tribes, tribal enterprises, public utilities, and private corporations in large transactions and projects, as well as in the resolution of complex jurisdictional and commercial disputes. With his experience representing tribes and tribal enterprises along with private commercial entities, Mr. Lewis has developed deep transactional, regulatory, and litigation experience in complex matters involving industry, tribes, states, and the federal government that allows him to effectively promote clients' interests in a wide range of governmental, financial, and commercial matters.

Personal: As a member of the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma with a wife and daughters who are members of the Navajo Nation, Mr. Lewis has deep and extensive ties in Oklahoma and the Navajo Nation and is committed to enhancing economic development in Indian Country. He earned his J.D. with an Indian Law Certificate from the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University, where he was a member of the Indian Legal Program and graduated Order of Barristers, and earned his B.A. and M.A. in Political Science and Political Economy from Washington State University with honors. Prior to law school, he attended the Pre-Law Summer Institute for American Indians at the University of New Mexico College of Law's American Indian Law Center. Mr. Lewis teaches and presents for the Navajo Nation Bar Association, state bar associations, and legal industry organizations in the areas of business organizations, civil procedure, commercial transactions, contracts, energy, and property law.

Career: As Chair of our Congressional Investigations Practice and Co-Chair of our Government Controversies and Public Policy Litigation Practice, Emily M. Loeb leverages her deep government and crisis management experience to guide companies and institutions through multi-faceted investigations and congressional inquiries, often during times of intense media scrutiny. As a former Associate Deputy Attorney General at the US Department of Justice and a former Associate White House Counsel, she has extensive experience conducting internal investigations and devising holistic risk management strategies for clients. The National Law Journal profiled her as one of Washington, DC's next generation of crisis management lawyers or "DC Fixers." Emily rejoined Jenner & Block in 2022 after serving on the Biden Administration's "Day One" leadership team at the Department of Justice. In that role, she advised the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, and other senior Department of Justice leadership on matters relating to Congress, including preparing Department nominees and officials for congressional hearings. Emily was responsible for overseeing the DOJ's responses to congressional oversight and investigations, including managing parallel executive privilege and separation-of-powers litigation, and she was often tasked with leading efforts to address complex intra-agency policy and compliance issues. She also supervised engagement with the Government Accountability Office (GAO) and the DOJ's Office of Information Policy, which coordinates Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) policy for the Executive Branch. Emily's practice focuses on representing high-profile clients facing challenges at the intersection of litigation, law enforcement, regulator and congressional investigations, and public scrutiny. She leads internal investigations and manages responses to congressional oversight, including preparing senior executives to give congressional testimony, to assist clients in strategically managing related risks from civil litigation, criminal investigations, and business reputation threats. Prior to joining Jenner & Block in 2016, Emily served for more than six years in senior positions in the Executive Branch. As an Associate Counsel in the Office of the White House Counsel, she advised senior White House and Executive Branch agency officials on high-priority litigation and congressional and other investigations, managing risk on a variety of policy initiatives. Before joining the Office of the White House Counsel, Emily served in several roles at the DOJ, including Senior Counselor and Acting Chief of Staff of the Civil Rights Division. During her time in the Civil Rights Division, she directed its response to congressional oversight and inspector general investigations and oversaw its legislative and policy initiatives. In 2012, Emily served as a special assistant US attorney in the Eastern District of Virginia, where she prosecuted federal drug and wire fraud cases. From 2009 to 2010, she was legislative and policy counsel in the White House Office of Legislative Affairs, where she helped enact the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 and student loan reform in the Healthcare and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010.

Featured in Advertising (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: •Advertising, Marketing & Promotions •Brand Management & Protection •Intellectual Property Law •Litigation •White Collar Defense & Investigations •International Law

Career: Andrew Lustigman offers comprehensive counsel to domestic and international clients on advertising, marketing and promotions matters and represents them in regulatory investigations, enforcement actions, and litigation. He chairs Olshan's Advertising, Marketing & Promotions Group and co-chairs its Brand Management & Protection Group. Marketers, advertisers, agencies and suppliers, among others, regularly seek Andy's counsel regarding legal aspects of their advertising and promotional marketing businesses. He's pragmatic and always looks for solutions that meet each client's specific needs. Andy advises them on the clearance of advertising, promotions, and marketing materials, and structures some of the most creative sweepstakes, games of skill, fundraising promotions, and other contests, development of social media programs, and direct marketing campaigns from both legal and compliance standpoints. He also conducts advertising and marketing due diligence in the context of mergers, acquisitions and investments. He is frequently called upon to help clients navigate the nation's complex subscription marketing laws. Andy advises clients across all media channels—social media, Internet, television, print, radio, direct mail, mobile, telemarketing, and other electronic media. He has significant experience with FTC and FDA regulatory requirements regarding health claims, advertising, labeling and distributing health-related products including OTC products, dietary supplements, medical devices, cosmetics, and medical foods. Clients also rely on Andy's pragmatic approach in representing them in investigations, enforcement actions, and litigation brought by those agencies, the United States Department of Justice, the FCC, the U.S. Postal Service, state attorneys general, district attorneys, and other governmental authorities. Andy's experience also extends to single-plaintiff, multiparty and class action cases and related commercial litigation alleging false and deceptive advertising, intellectual property-related claims, and corporate disputes, as well as a wide array of competitor advertising, IP and privacy challenges. Proactive and strategic, Andy takes on emerging threats and conceives creative and aggressive defense theories to protect his client's interests both in and out of court, including in alternative dispute venues. In prosecuting and defending his clients' cases, he frequently appears in federal and state court and before the National Advertising Division of the Better Business Bureau. Repeatedly recognized as a leader in his field and as an authority on advertising and promotional marketing law, Andy regularly appears on television, radio, and in publications such as The Wall Street Journal, New York Post, The National Law Journal, New York Law Journal, Inside Counsel, Bloomberg BNA, Law360, Mobile Marketer, and Luxury Daily, discussing important new cases and trends that advertisers and marketers need to know about. He has testified as an expert witness on advertising compliance in federal court. A growing area of work Andy handles includes advising on and structuring a broad range of international business transactions. He also is retained by Am Law 100 and other leading firms as special counsel on advertising compliance matters in connection with their clients' business investments. In addition to maintaining his active practice, Andy is a co-managing partner of the firm and a member of its Executive Committee. He frequently speaks on advertising and promotional marketing law topics throughout the country and has been the publisher of Olshan's Advertising Law Blog since its inception in the early 2000s.

MAC CORMAC, Susan

Morrison Foerster, San Francisco
smaccormac@mofo.com

Featured in Impact Investing (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Susan ("Suz") co-chairs the ESG + Sustainability and Social Enterprise + Impact Investing practices. Her practice focuses on late-stage financings, secondaries, and other corporate transactions for investors, such as SoftBank and Temasek, and on investments for some of the top investors dedicated to impact, from "impact first" foundations to family offices to private equity funds. She co-lead the drafting group for the first of the new corporate forms (the Social Purpose Corporation in California), has created hybrid/tandem corporate structures and crafted debt and equity instruments that blend impact with traditional financial terms, and has used corporate law to develop creative capital market solutions to pressing environmental problems. She also advises the boards of public and private companies on corporate governance and fiduciary duties as applied to sustainability and climate change. She was named a California Lawyer Attorney of the Year (CLAY) in 2012 and 2016 by Daily Journal and the Most Innovative Lawyer in North America in 2015 by the Financial Times. Leading Business Advisor A powerhouse negotiator, clients note that "you cannot get a better corporate counsel" and that Suz "understands the big picture, could not be more responsive, and understands the business" (The Legal 500 US). She has extensive experience providing corporate and finance advice to companies and investors in connection with growth equity financings and secondaries, with particular experience in late-stage investments that have come to rival traditional strategic acquisitions in size and significance. Her experience includes leading some of the highest-profile late-stage investments over the past few years, including notable transactions for SoftBank Group (in the two largest private tender offers in history) in its $7.7 billion investment in Uber, $4.4 billion investment in WeWork, further $10 billion investment in WeWork, $1 billion investment in SoFi, and $250 million investment in Kabbage. She has also advised Temasek on its $800 million investment in Verily Life Sciences, Intel on its equity investment in Cloudera, and each of Fortress, TPG Rise, Vision Ridge Partners, Generation Investment Management, and Pontifax

AgTech in numerous mid-to late-stage investments in clean technology, sustainability, education, food, and agriculture technology. Social Enterprise and Impact Investing Suz is the go-to legal resource for social enterprises (for-profit and non-profit companies focused on social or environmental purpose), impact investors (investors interested in social or environmental returns), and mainstream companies developing environmental, social, and corporate governance policies. With deep expertise in the impact investing model, institutional investors exploring the space turn to her for creative solutions and her ability to structure both investments and companies to emphasize impact and returns. She represents a wide range of investors who are focused on impact, from foundations like the Gates Foundation, The Nature Conservancy, and The Rockefeller Foundation, to family offices like Armonia, Cornerstone Capital, Emerson Collective, New Island Capital, and Omidyar Network, to private equity funds like Goldman Sachs, TPG Rise, Vision Ridge Partners, and Generation Investment Management, in their equity investments in companies and projects that are focused on generating impact and returns for investors. She has deep experience and expertise ensuring energy, sustainability, and other investments have positive impact through the use of new corporate forms, hybrid or "tandem" structures with non-profits and for-profits, and alternative debt and equity instruments. Notable work in this space includes the establishment of a tandem structure, The Carbon Endowment, to retire coal assets at scale while securing a revenue stream for community reinvestment and job training in coal communities. Suz also advised on the structuring of Common Sense Growth as an extension of the non-profit Common Sense Media (to invest in companies that address issues related to children, education, and technology), the establishment of a fund for TPG Rise to provide debt financing to Echoing Green fellows, the spin-out of PRX from Public Radio International (to generate new revenue flows up to the non-profit), the establishment of a for-profit joint venture with non-profit Medicines360 (to allow the non-profit to distribute its healthcare products to women in the developing world), and the structuring of a for-profit evergreen fund that allows The Nature Conservancy to aggregate return-seeking and donor capital in order to invest in preserving our natural resources. She has also advised numerous clients on converting to a public benefit corporation or social purpose corporation model (which requires balancing traditional fiduciary duties against a social or environmental purpose), including This American Life, Revolution Foods, Rise Labs, and Beneficial State Bancorp. Suz also regularly advises boards of directors of private and public companies, special committees, and CEOs on corporate governance, particularly the intersection of fiduciary duties with sustainability, and focuses on environmental, social, and governance issues. Unmatched Cleantech and Renewable Energy Experience In addition to founding and chairing the firm's Social Enterprise and Impact Investing Group, Suz serves as Chair of Morrison & Foerster's Energy Group and has extensive experience representing start-up to late stage private companies in the clean technology or sustainability space. She provides corporate and finance advice in connection with equity and debt financings, mergers, acquisitions, asset purchases and sales, reorganizations, and joint ventures. She has experience working with renewable energy start-up companies and renewable energy developers in the solar, wind, and biofuels industries. Suz has assisted renewable energy start up companies with raising venture capital and has advised renewable energy developers on project acquisitions. Suz's representative renewable energy, cleantech, sustainable, and social enterprise clients include Anaergia, Change.org, EDF Renewables, E.ON, Etsy, First Look, OneSun, Planet Labs, Rising Sun Energy, RSF Social Finance, SustainBio, Trelys, Inc., Wikipedia, and Xpansiv. Board Activity and Thought Leadership Ms. Mac Cormac was a founding board member of the Sustainability Accounting Standards Board (SASB), is a member of the board of directors of Business for Social Responsibility (BSR), the Ceres President's Council, and the Earth Genome Project, and is an advising board member of the Committee Encouraging Corporate Philanthropy's Strategic Investor Initiative. She has joined the faculty (teaching on the intersection of sustainability and fiduciary duties) at both the Stanford Director's College and the Northwestern Corporate Counsel Institute and is an adjunct professor at UC Berkeley School of Law, teaching a course on Social Enterprise.

Featured in Financial Services Regulation (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Jeremy Mandell is the co-chair of our Financial Services Group. His practice focuses on financial services regulation, with particular attention to payment and emerging payment issues. Jeremy advises bank, non-bank, and fintech clients on financial services regulatory issues, including issues arising under the Electronic Fund Transfer Act, the Truth in Lending Act, and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act. He has particular experience working on issues related to interbank and emerging payments systems, including blockchain-based payment solutions and stablecoin platforms. He has counseled clients with award-winning apps and innovative products and services on complex issues, bringing a practical, broad-market perspective to product development, ongoing compliance needs, and regulatory engagement. He also has extensive experience working with banks and non-banks on strategic partnerships. As partnerships between banks and fintechs become more prevalent, Jeremy draws on this experience to advise clients on the financial services regulatory and commercial issues that arise in the context of these partnerships. Jeremy is co-editor of The Consumer Finance Law Review, surveying the legal and regulatory approaches to consumer finance law in jurisdictions around the world. Before joining Morrison Foerster, he served as a senior financial services analyst at the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in the Division of Reserve Bank Operations and Payment Systems, where he focused on policy issues related to large-value payments systems. Jeremy leverages this experience to advise clients on various legal and regulatory issues. Jeremy earned his J.D. from The George Washington University Law School in 2010. He earned his M.A. in applied economics from Johns Hopkins University in 2004 and his B.A. in economics and international relations from Lehigh University in 2001.

Featured in Appellate Law (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Appellate Litigation; Commercial Litigation; Congressional Investigations; Education; Employment, Discrimination and Sexual Misconduct; Investigations and Crisis Management; Public Interest Litigation

Career: Joshua Matz is a partner at Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP. Joshua's practice includes complex commercial disputes, constitutional and civil rights law, and Supreme Court and appellate litigation. He litigates a wide array of commercial cases, ranging from contract, fraud and misappropriation disputes to consumer protection and sex discrimination matters. He advises individuals, non-profits and companies on their response to congressional and state attorney general inquiries, participates in sensitive internal investigations and supports clients seeking to navigate complex legal questions. Along with several of his colleagues at KHF, Joshua has represented Brown University and Columbia University in Title IX litigation. Joshua is also an experienced defamation litigator. He was part of the legal team that successfully represented writer E. Jean Carroll in her sexual battery and defamation suits against Donald Trump, securing two substantial jury verdicts of $5 million and $83.3 million, respectively — both after under three hours of deliberations. Joshua previously represented Liz Mair in successfully defending against two defamation suits filed by Rep. Devin Nunes concerning her political criticism. And in September 2020, he successfully represented Stanford Medical School faculty who were threatened with a defamation suit for scientific criticism of policies advocated by former White House Coronavirus Advisor Dr. Scott Atlas. In addition, Joshua maintains a substantial civil rights and constitutional practice. He has developed particular expertise in election law and redistricting, LGBTQ rights, religious liberty and freedom of speech, though his representations have also addressed privacy rights, due process, racial justice, firearm regulation, the right to counsel and the separation of powers. In his constitutional matters, Joshua has represented individual clients, civil rights organizations, non-profits, companies, current and former government officials, cities, states and congressional committees. While many of these representations have involved litigation, Joshua also provides practical counsel to clients seeking to understand and strategize their options. Alongside his litigation experience, Joshua has written for diverse audiences about legal issues. His articles have appeared in The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal, The Harvard Law Review Forum, The University of Chicago Law Review, The Fordham Law Review, The Daily Journal, The Guardian, The Atlantic and Wired, and he has been invited to speak at Harvard Law School, the 92nd Street Y, the ABA LGBTQ+ Forum, the National Constitution Center and Politics & Prose. In March 2012, Joshua and Larry Tribe of Harvard Law School published "The Constitutional Inevitability of Same-Sex Marriage," 71 Md. L. Rev. 471 (2012). In June 2014, they published an award-winning book, Uncertain Justice: The Roberts Court and the Constitution (Henry Holt). And in May 2018, they published their second book together, To End a Presidency: The Power of Impeachment (Basic Books). The Economist proclaimed this book "the definitive treatment of a vital subject." From October 2019 through February 2020, Joshua took leave from the firm to serve as counsel to the House Judiciary Committee for the first impeachment and trial of President Trump. Following the events of January 6, 2021, Joshua again took leave to serve as Impeachment Counsel to the House Judiciary Committee for the second Senate trial of President Trump. In January 2021, Joshua was commissioned by Governor Andy Beshear as a Kentucky Colonel for successfully defending the Governor's COVID-19 public health measures at the Supreme Court. Beyond his work at the firm, Joshua also serves as an Adjunct Professor at Georgetown Law School, where he co-teaches "Constitutional Litigation and the Executive Branch." Additionally, Joshua serves on the Board of Directors for Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington and the American Constitution Society. Joshua has received widespread acclaim for his work. He was recognized by The American Lawyer as a "Young Lawyer of the Year," Law360 named him an "Appellate Rising Star," and Business Insider described him as a "Rising Star of the Courtroom." He was also named to Washingtonian Magazine's List of Most Influential People in Washington. In 2014, Forbes named Joshua to its "30 Under 30: Law & Policy" list, and in 2016 he was named an "Alumni All-Star" of past honorees. Joshua received his B.A., magna cum laude, from the University of Pennsylvania; his MST, with distinction, from Oxford University; and his J.D., magna cum laude, from Harvard Law School. While in law school, Joshua interned at the Public Citizen Litigation Group and the Federal Defenders of New York. He also served as Articles & Book Reviews Chair of the Harvard Law Review. Following law school, Joshua clerked for the Honorable J. Paul Oetken of the Southern District of New York, the Honorable Stephen Reinhardt of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and Justice Anthony M. Kennedy of the United States Supreme Court.

He serves as co-chair of the litigation department and has remarkably broad and extensive jury trial experience. He has tried civil cases involving breach of contract, business torts and fraud, trade secret, patent, antitrust, securities, product liability/mass tort, and qui tam claims. He also has tried criminal cases involving antitrust, health care fraud, bank fraud, public corruption, and kidnapping. Tom is the author of a widely acclaimed book on trying cases before a jury, On the Jury Trial. Tom tries lawsuits in state and federal courts before both judges and juries and involving civil claims and criminal charges. His trial experience is unusually broad and extensive. On the civil side, he has tried to verdict cases involving commercial, business tort, fraud, product liability, mass tort, securities, antitrust, patent infringement, trade secrets, and qui tam/FCA claims. On the criminal side, he has tried to verdict cases involving health care fraud, bank fraud, public corruption, copyright infringement, aggravated sexual assault, and kidnapping. Tom's jury trials include successfully representing plaintiffs and defendants all over the U.S. and throughout Texas. Prior to joining private practice, Tom served as a federal prosecutor in Dallas. He successfully prosecuted the largest bank fraud case ever undertaken in Texas, involving more than US$200M in fraud, and he obtained one of the largest RICO verdicts in Texas history. The Justice Department honored Tom as one of the nation's top prosecutors.

Career: Building upon his experience in complex asbestos cases, the historic tobacco lawsuits and the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks litigation, Don Migliori is a multifaceted litigator who can navigate both the courtroom and the negotiating table. He represents victims of defective medical devices and drugs, occupational diseases, terrorism, aviation disasters, antitrust, and securities and consumer fraud in mass torts and other cutting-edge litigation that spans the country. Don serves in leadership roles for a number of multidistrict litigations, including being a key member of Motley Rice's team that represents dozens of cities, towns, counties and townships in the National Prescription Opiate MDL against opioid manufacturers and distributors. He also represents states in similarly filed litigation. He played a significant role in negotiations on behalf of tens of thousands of women allegedly harmed by pelvic mesh/sling products and served as co-liaison counsel in the N.J. Bard pelvic mesh litigation in Atlantic County. Hundreds of cases have been filed in federal and state courts against multiple defendants. He is also co-lead counsel for In re Ethicon Physiomesher Flexible Composite Hernia Mesh Products Liability Litigation, a member of the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee for In re Bard IVC Filters Products Liability Litigation, as well as the Depuy® Orthopaedics, Inc. ASR™ and Pinnacle® Hip Implant MDLs. Don has litigated against both Ethicon, a Johnson & Johnson subsidiary, and C.R. Bard previously in pelvic mesh litigation and also against C.R. Bard in the Composix® Kugel® hernia mesh multidistrict litigation, In re Kugel Mesh Hernia Patch Products Liability Litigation, the first MDL before the federal court of Rhode Island. Don also serves as co-lead plaintiffs' counsel and liaison counsel in the federal MDL, and as liaison counsel for the Composix® Kugel® Mesh lawsuits consolidated in Rhode Island state court on behalf of thousands of individuals alleging injury by the hernia repair patch. As liaison counsel for all wrongful death and personal injury cases in the September 11th aviation security litigation, Don played a central role in the extensive discovery, mediations and settlements of more than 50 cases of aviation liability and damages against numerous defendants. He also represented families of the victims who opted out of the Victim Compensation Fund to seek greater answers, accountability and recourse. Additionally, he manages associated litigation as a lead attorney for In re Terrorist Attacks on September 11, 2001, MDL #1570, a groundbreaking case designed to bankrupt the financiers of al Qaeda. Don contributed his experience in connection with the commencement of and strategy for shareholder derivative litigation brought on behalf Chiquita Brands International, Inc., alleging the defendants breached their fiduciary duties by paying bribes to terrorist organizations in violation of U.S. and Colombian law. He also served as trial counsel for PACE Industry Union-Management Pension Fund in a securities case against Forest Laboratories, Inc., and was involved in the initial liability discovery and trial strategy in an ongoing securities fraud class action involving Household International, Inc. Don is a frequent speaker at legal seminars across the country and has appeared on numerous television and radio programs, as well as in print media to address legal issues related to terrorist financing, aviation security, class action litigation, premises liability and defective medical devices. A "Distinguished Practitioner in Residence" at Roger Williams University School of Law for the 2010-2011 academic year, Don taught mass torts as an adjunct professor for more than ten years.

Featured in Energy & Natural Resources (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Gregory Mocek's practice involves legal and strategic guidance on a broad range of issues, including regulatory, government investigations, internal investigations, the Dodd-Frank Act, litigation, legislation, compliance, global financial regulatory and operational risk. Gregory is one of the top commodity and derivatives lawyers in the United States, and has advised clients and led investigations in more than a dozen countries. In addition to recognition by Chambers, Washington D.C. Super Lawyers, and The Legal 500, he was selected for inclusion in The Best Lawyers in America since 2012 in the area of Derivatives and Futures Law. He also was honored as Lawyer of the Year in The Best Lawyers in America 2013 for Derivatives and Futures Law. Chambers USA said Gregory is a lawyer who has "encyclopedic knowledge of the CFTC." As a former member of the Board of Directors of the Commodity Markets Council, Gregory was involved in rulemaking and policy discussions with industry and regulators. Gregory remains on the frontline of domestic and cross-border regulatory issues, investigations, and litigation in the commodity and derivatives markets. He is regularly retained to advise and defend executives and corporations in bet-the-company regulatory matters, inquiries and investigations that require significant appreciation of markets, trading dynamics, and regulatory scope. His advisory work and defense of clients in the physical, swaps, futures, and options markets has covered multiple commodities including agriculture, energy, metals, interest rates, virtual currency, and foreign currency. Over more than twenty years, Gregory handled regulatory matters, investigations and litigated cases related to price reporting and commodity benchmarks, manipulation, fraud, wash trading, false reporting, unlawful trading practices, supervision, spoofing, position limits, capitalization and many other issues. He has advised clients related to registration issues associated with designated contract markets, swap execution facilities, swap dealers, futures commission merchants, introducing brokers, commodity trading advisors, and commodity pool operators. Given his extensive regulatory background, Gregory was also called to testify during the rulemaking process at the CFTC, offering comments and insight on the disruptive trading practices and the spoofing provisions of the Dodd-Frank Act. As a former Director of Enforcement for the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Gregory rose through the organization to provide leadership as one of the longest serving enforcement directors in Commission history. Leading 175 professionals in the Division of Enforcement, he was responsible for managing the Commission's investigations, policies and related litigation in the U.S. and abroad. During the Bush administration, Gregory directed a wide variety of domestic and international cases at the CFTC involving complex OTC, physical and on-exchange transactions. He also worked closely with the President's Corporate Fraud Task Force, the Enron Task Force, FERC, SEC, DOJ, and multiple other U.S. and foreign regulatory bodies. Furthermore, he played a key role in high-profile CFTC actions against Enron, Amaranth, and in hundreds of other complex cases. Gregory and his investigation and litigation teams developed techniques, theories, and case law in the energy markets that ultimately were the backbone of the commodity benchmark cases. Prior to his appointment as the Director of Enforcement, Gregory held several titles at the CFTC, including Special Counsel to Chairman Dr. James Newsome and Senior Trial Attorney. Before joining the CFTC, he was in private practice and focused on securities, commodities and commercial litigation. Gregory advises a broad spectrum of clients, including domestic and international banks, proprietary trading firms, commercial companies, producers, commodity merchants, foreign and domestic trading houses, major oil companies, and hedge funds. He has represented corporations, boards of directors, and individuals in investigations involving the CFTC, Securities and Exchange Commission, Department of Justice, Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, National Futures Association, Federal Trade Commission, Financial Conduct Authority, BaFin, CME Group, ICE Futures, and other regulatory and enforcement authorities. A frequent speaker on compliance, risk, fintech, and Dodd-Frank regulatory and enforcement issues, Gregory is a member of the Futures Industry Association, and the Commodities & Derivatives Section of the American Bar Association.

LIPS is one of the most experienced Supreme Court and appellate lawyers in the country. As a partner at Sidley, Carter has argued 81 cases before the Supreme Court, more than any other lawyer in private practice. Prior to joining Sidley, Carter served as an Assistant to the Solicitor General and in that position he argued nine cases before the Supreme Court on behalf of the United States government. He thus currently has a total of 90 oral arguments before the Supreme Court. He also has argued more than 150 times before the United States Courts of Appeals, including at least two arguments in every circuit and 40 cases before the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. He also has been a co-director of Northwestern University School of Law's Supreme Court Clinic and an adjunct professor at the law school for more than 15 years. At the outset of his career, Carter clerked for Judge Robert Sprecher on the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit and for Chief Justice Warren E. Burger on the United States Supreme Court. Carter's advocacy on behalf of clients has earned him acknowledgement in numerous publications, including most recently Forbes top 200 lawyers list in 2024. An academic study of Supreme Court briefs from 1946 to 2013 found Carter to be one of the most successful lawyers to argue in front of the Supreme Court. The analysis, "Who Wins in the Supreme Court? An Examination of Attorney and Law Firm Influence," led the author to conclude that "not only is Phillips a seasoned Supreme Court litigator, but he is also one of the most successful Supreme Court brief-writers."

Featured in International Arbitration (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: John V.H. Pierce, Global Co-Chair of the International Arbitration Practice, represents a global client base from a wide variety of industries and business sectors in high-stakes, complex international arbitration, and litigation matters in venues around the world. Mr. Pierce is a widely recognized expert in international dispute resolution, with more than 20 years of experience representing clients in institutional and ad hoc arbitrations seated in both common and civil law jurisdictions. Mr. Pierce has been involved as lead counsel or arbitrator in arbitrations pending before all major arbitral institutions and he has extensive experience with international arbitral procedure and advocacy. He regularly guides clients through disputes, under a wide variety of procedural and substantive laws, involving joint venture and shareholder matters, post-M&A issues, IP rights, financial services, energy and chemical supply contracts, as well as commercial and corporate matters. He also advises clients on the international enforcement of arbitration awards and judgments, and on the protection of foreign investments. In addition to his counsel work, Mr. Pierce regularly serves as an arbitrator in international disputes. Mr. Pierce is consistently recognized by clients and competitors as a leading authority in the field of international arbitration and dispute resolution. In various editions of the Chambers Global and Chambers USA guides, Mr. Pierce has been described by clients and peers as "an exceptional advocate," a "formidable" and "very tough opponent," "outstanding," "very smart, strategic and knows how to handle a client," "really excellent," and a "top-notch" and "very knowledgeable" practitioner with "a great ability to understand and execute complex business objectives." Mr. Pierce is also recognized as a Thought Leader in the field of international arbitration by Who's Who Legal, which describes him as able to "defly appl[y] the law to complex issues in order to craft the best possible arguments" and notes that he "navigates multiple jurisdictions with ease." He is described by peers and clients in GAR's International Who's Who of Commercial Arbitration as a "versatile" lawyer with an "outstanding legal mind and critical thinking skills" who "performs brilliantly" in venues throughout the world." In 2020, Mr. Pierce was named the recipient of the International Law Office (ILO) 2020 Client Choice Award for Arbitration in the United States. According to Client Choice's research, clients praised Mr. Pierce as "an outstanding lawyer" and a "practical and strategic thinker," "who is adept at legal writing and leading a large team." Clients specifically praised Mr. Pierce's "excellent advocacy skills before tribunals" and noted that his "professional preparation of each submission and the hearing itself are phenomenal." He was elected to the American Law Institute in 2020. He is a member of the ICC Commission on Arbitration, a member of the Executive Committee of the New York International Arbitration Center, a founding member of the International Arbitration Club of New York, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. Prior to private practice, Mr. Pierce served as a law clerk to the Honorable M. Margaret McKeown on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. He was selected as a Jean Monnet fellow at the École Polytechnique in Palaiseau, France (1992-1993) and as a Young Leader of the American Council on Germany (2009-2010).

Featured in Privacy & Data Security (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Alan Raul is Senior Counsel and founder of Sidley Austin LLP's global Privacy and Cybersecurity practice and a member of the firm's top ranked Crisis Management and Strategic Response team. He represents companies on U.S. and international privacy, cybersecurity, artificial intelligence, and technology issues. Alan advises on global regulatory compliance, data breaches, and crisis management. Alan also focuses on issues concerning national security, constitutional, and administrative law. He handles enforcement, litigation and public policy issues involving the FTC, State Attorneys General, SEC, DOJ, FBI, DHS/CISA, the intelligence community, and their respective international counterparts. Alan advises companies and financial sponsors regarding transactions involving cybersecurity, AI, international data transfers, digital and communication technologies and data-centric business models, and related due diligence. Alan serves as a Lecturer on Law at Harvard Law School, where he teaches classes on "Digital Governance: Privacy, Artificial Intelligence and Information Technology" and "Cybersecurity Risks, Rules and Responsibilities." He is also Adjunct Professor of Law at Georgetown. Alan is Chair and President of the governing Board of Directors of the Future of Privacy Forum. He is a member of the Technology Litigation Advisory Committee of the U.S. Chamber Litigation Center, and the Council on Foreign Relations. Alan previously served in government as Vice Chairman of the Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board. During his service on PCLOB, the Board addressed the Terrorist Surveillance Program authorized by the President. He also served as General Counsel of the Office of Management and Budget; General Counsel of the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and Associate Counsel to the President. In his prior government service, Alan represented the White House in connection with congressional and independent counsel investigations of the Iran-Contra episode. He maintains a national security clearance. Alan received his J.D. from Yale Law School, M.P.A. from Harvard Kennedy School, and A.B. magna cum laude from Harvard College. In addition to his professional activities, Alan also serves on the Board and as Secretary of the Society for the Rule of Law, which he helped found in 2018 as "Checks and Balances." The Society is a group of conservative and center-right lawyers dedicated to defending democracy and the rule of law regardless of the party or persons in power. In 1990, Alan co-founded the "Lawyers Have Heart" 10K run and walk, to benefit the American Heart Association. He continues his active involvement with the event. In his law practice, Alan has represented a number of leading technology and internet companies whose devices, software, or users have been exploited by state-sponsored threat actors.

Such events typically involve extensive coordination with U.S. and international law enforcement, cybersecurity and regulatory agencies, and intelligence services. Cyber crises often involve managing various legal, regulatory, B2B, and consumer risks as well as offering advice regarding a broad range of corporate communications and public messaging. He represented the internet technology company that collaborated successfully with U.S. and UK governments to defend against and take down the Russian GRU's malicious "Cyclops Blink" malware before the Ukraine invasion. Alan represented the Special Cybersecurity Committee of Yahoo! Board of Directors in connection with its independent investigation of the company's handling of the two largest data breaches ever reported. Alan represented AT&T in support of Microsoft in In the Matter of a Warrant to Search Certain E-mail Account Controlled and Maintained by Microsoft Corporation (contesting extraterritorial access to electronic communications stored in Ireland). And, invoking "the interest of justice," Judge Amy Berman Jackson appointed Alan to serve as pro bono counsel to represent the privacy interests of jurors in connection with a high profile criminal litigation, In re: Juror Questionnaires in United States v. Stone; the jurors feared the disclosure of their confidential questionnaires would lead to cyber harassment and worse. Alan is ranked in Chambers' first tier of privacy and cybersecurity practitioners and has been named a BTI

Super All-Star for client service in the privacy and cybersecurity field. Alan has also been named as a leading international Internet and E-Commerce Lawyer in Who's Who Legal, and Ethisphere Institute's "Attorneys Who Matter" in Data Privacy/Security, which recognizes lawyers with the highest commitment to public service, legal community engagement, and academic involvement. The Washingtonian has named Alan one of Washington, D.C.'s Best Lawyers for Cybersecurity and also for First Amendment and Media Law, and the National Law Journal named him a "Cyber Security Trailblazer."

Featured in eDiscovery (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: E-Discovery & Information Governance

Career: Jonathan M. Redgrave, a founding partner of Redgrave LLP, has extensive experience in all areas of complex litigation in state and federal courts. He focuses his practice in eDiscovery, information governance, and privacy and data security issues. He is recognized by peers and clients as a pioneer in developing and advancing the fields of eDiscovery and information governance. Jonathan represents Fortune 100 companies worldwide, and he is frequently sought out to address challenges involving discovery strategy in complex litigation and best practices concerning information management. With extensive experience in high-stakes and bet-the-company litigation in both state and federal courts, Jonathan counsels clients on pre-litigation concerns and solutions, develops practical litigation strategies, and represents both requesting and producing parties. He also advises clients on cutting-edge issues in the information law field, including the intersection of AI/machine learning and legal requirements and the influence of emerging technologies on eDiscovery and information governance. As a respected authority in the field of eDiscovery, Jonathan frequently provides expert services in contentious litigation matters concerning eDiscovery disputes. His work has included providing testifying expert services to address discovery scope, preservation, collection, production, and privilege debates and serving as a special master in cases to oversee the discovery process or to adjudicate disputes between the parties related to specific discovery or merits issues. Continually at the forefront of the eDiscovery and information law fields, Jonathan helped conceive and found The Sedona Conference® Working Group Series on Electronic Document Retention and Production (WG1) in 2002. He served as chair for the first five years and currently is a chair emeritus. Jonathan has contributed thought leadership to numerous publications, including serving as Editor-in-Chief of "The Sedona Principles®." Jonathan is a sought-after speaker worldwide, addressing topics ranging from cross-border discovery to information governance, privacy, data security, and emerging technologies. Jonathan's desire to continue to blaze the path in the field of information law extends to his extensive involvement in pushing the needle on civil rule reform, including his contributions to addressing the pervasive challenges and potential solutions surrounding privilege logs in civil litigation. In recent years, Jonathan and the Hon. John Facciola (ret.) led the inaugural Symposium on the Modern Privilege Log, which brought together key thought leaders to discuss ways to improve the legal framework concerning privilege logging and Rule 26 compliance. The work of the Symposium was cited in the 2022 Federal Civil Rules Advisory Committee recommendations for amendments to Rule 26 concerning privilege logs, and Jonathan continues to endeavor on the mission to achieve fairness and efficiency in privilege log protocols. Prior to co-founding Redgrave LLP, Jonathan had been a partner with Jones Day and Nixon Peabody LLP, as well as Redgrave, Daley, Ragan & Wagner LLP and Gray, Plant, Mooty, Mooty & Bennett, P.A.

Featured in Products Liability (USA - Nationwide)

Career: Sacchet specializes in complex civil litigation, including multi-district litigation. Involved in all aspects of the case, Sacchet excels at briefing, oral argument, and cross-examining expert witnesses at deposition and trial. Given his litigation experience and leadership skills, Sacchet was recently appointed to serve as Co-Lead Counsel in MDL 3081: In re Bard Implanted Port Catheter Products Liability Litigation and to serve on the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee in MDL 3089: In re Oral Phenylephrine Marketing and Sales Practice Litigation. In 2023, only ten years after graduating from Harvard Law School, Sacchet was invited to become the youngest-ever Fellow of the International Academy of Trial Lawyers, which limits membership to 500 attorneys from the United States who possess superior skill and recognized ability in trial and appellate practice. Sacchet has co-tried numerous cases to verdict, including five bellwether trials in the 3M Earplugs MDL — the largest MDL in American history. Obtaining more than $200 million in verdicts in less than a year, Sacchet never lost a 3M Earplugs trial and helped secure the largest multi-plaintiff verdict ($110 million) and the largest single-plaintiff verdict ($77.5 million) in the MDL. Sacchet has also briefed and argued discovery, dispositive, pre-trial, and post-trial motions in federal and state district courts across the country. He has drafted appellate briefs and/or argued before the United States Supreme Court, United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth and Eleventh Circuits, Minnesota Supreme Court, and Minnesota Court of Appeals. Notably, Sacchet was appointed to the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee and named Chair of the Law, Briefing, and Legal Drafting Committee in MDL 2885: In re 3M Combat Arms Earplug Products Liability Litigation. A four-member panel appointed Sacchet to both positions after reviewing nearly 200 applications from attorneys across the country and listening to 64 presentations over a 2-day period. As Chair of Law & Briefing, Sacchet briefed and argued cross-motions for summary judgment on 3M's global preemption defense. The MDL judge hailed Sacchet's oral argument as "outstanding" and "as good as any" she'd seen in her 18 years on the bench. The MDL court granted plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment and denied 3M's cross motion on the government contractor defense, allowing over 200,000 cases to proceed to trial. In addition, Sacchet defeated numerous Daubert and other dispositive motions in MDL 2666: In re Bair Hugger Forced Air Warming Devices Products Liability Litigation. As a result of the arguments that Sacchet briefed and argued in the Eighth Circuit, nearly 6,000 cases against 3M were reinstated after the district court erroneously excluded plaintiffs' general-causation experts and dismissed the MDL. In addition to his role as Co-Lead Counsel of the In re Bard Implanted Port Catheter MDL, Sacchet was selected to serve on numerous Subcommittees (Trial, Settlement, Law & Briefing, and Common Benefit). Finally, as a certified mindfulness meditation teacher, Sacchet frequently presents CLEs on mindful lawyering. He also leads meditation practice groups for lawyers and the public. Please contact Sacchet to learn more about those opportunities. Prior to joining Ciresi Conlin, Sacchet served as a law clerk to Judge Diana E. Murphy of the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit and to Judge Philip S. Gutierrez of the United States District Court for the Central District of California. Before law school, Sacchet served as a Teach for America Corps Member in East Palo Alto, California. Sacchet graduated with honors from Harvard Law School, where he was an editor of the Harvard Civil Rights-Civil Liberties Law Review, argued and wrote award-winning briefs in the Ames Moot Court Competition, and received numerous dean's scholar prizes for outstanding academic work. He graduated first in his class from Northwestern University, where he was honored with the Top Grade Point Average Award as well as the Best Legal Studies Undergraduate Thesis Award.

Career: As a lawyer and a registered lobbyist, Josh Sanders has spent many years involved in the practice of Government Relations, bringing more than 20 years of valuable experience on a variety of complex issues to his clients across a number of unique industries. Josh, a Partner and Co-Chair of Calfee's Government Relations and Legislation practice group, works on legislative, agency and executive projects for a number of Fortune 500 companies as well as emerging bio-tech. His experience is varied, from working with the Department of Commerce to obtain liquor permits to the obtainment of funds to complex state revisions in the state budget. Josh has extensive legislative experience in the areas of alcohol, tobacco, transportation, gaming, pharmaceuticals, bio-tech, construction, energy, labor, telecommunications and education. Josh also has directed a number of grass-roots projects aimed at both state and federal elected officials while also working directly on campaigns for numerous candidates. Josh lobbied throughout the Midwest for both the largest smokeless tobacco manufacturer and the world's leading premium drinks business. This combination of state government knowledge and corporate culture understanding allows Josh to produce results for his clients. Josh started his career as a Legislative Service Commission Fellow learning the ways of the Ohio Senate. He then furthered his state government knowledge as a legislative liaison for the Ohio Department of Commerce. This firsthand experience allows Josh to help his clients navigate the complexities and hurdles found in the legislative and agency arenas. Josh also brings an in-depth understanding of the needs and responsibilities of his corporate clients in the government relations field and especially to those handling a multi-state region. He has been a presenter at the Crain's Cleveland Business Breakfast Series as well as at the Ohio State Bar Association's Leadership Academy. Josh has also presented at the International Council of Shopping Centers Retail Development & Law Symposium. Josh serves as chair of the Calfee Jewish Lawyers affinity group, and he is a member of the firm's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion group. In the electricity sector, Dan frequently advises clients (including power marketers, lenders and investors) on power transactions and regional transmission organization (RTO) and independent system operator (ISO) market rules. He has represented several clients in non-public FERC enforcement investigations and public enforcement proceedings. Dan also helps clients analyze and negotiate long-term power purchase agreements (PPAs). Dan represents numerous clients in drafting, negotiating, and obtaining regulatory approvals for developing or acquiring generating facilities, including plants running on natural gas, wind, solar, biomass, and hydro. This work includes helping clients with interconnection agreements, transmission service, Renewable Portfolio Standard (RPS) requirements, PPA negotiation, and ISO/RTO participation. Dan also frequently represents clients in post-commercial operation disputes involving interconnection, transmission and ISO/RTO issues. Dan also assists large energy consumers in participating in demand response and net metering programs, operating behind-the-meter generating projects, and service disputes with host utilities. Dan advises clients on regulatory requirements for hydroprojects. His experience includes assisting clients in obtaining and complying with FERC licenses, negotiating agreements with state and federal environmental and resource agencies, performing due diligence for potential acquisitions, and assisting with regulatory requirements in closing hydroproject acquisitions. Additionally, Dan helps casinos and resorts in their efforts to reduce their energy costs and/or reduce their carbon footprint in acquiring renewable energy, either through on-site generation or power purchase agreements with remote renewable energy projects. Dan regularly represents large natural gas consumers and shippers on FERC and state utility commission policies in a wide range of transactions. For instance, Dan has assisted clients in negotiating precedent and interconnection agreements to connect directly to interstate natural gas pipelines. Dan has advised clients on understanding tariff provisions for interstate natural gas pipelines and storage services, including park and loan arrangements, as well as asset management agreements. He also has analyzed and negotiated natural gas commodity contracts and assisted with FERC Form 552 compliance. Dan also assists large natural gas consumers on state-regulated service issues with local distribution companies (LDCs). Dan also advises producers, refiners, and traders on oil pipeline shipping and storage issues, including raising disputes with pipelines, and drafting/amending agreements with pipelines and producers to coordinate transactional activity with pipeline rules. Dan previously served as a trial attorney in FERC's Office of Administrative Litigation, where he litigated and settled numerous regulatory disputes involving the Western electricity crisis of 2000-2001 and allegations of market manipulation by Enron and others.

Featured in Cannabis Law (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Litigation; Cannabis Career: Priya Sopori's legal savvy and deep courtroom experience enable her to provide clients with the skilled representation and counsel they need during high-stakes trial and crisis situations. As a former Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Central District of California, she indicted some 45 cases, tried numerous multi-week jury trials, and successfully prosecuted federal sex crimes against women and children, white-collar fraud, and cybercrimes, obtaining convictions. Cannabis Experience Working with clients who represent cannabis investment funds, manufacturers, distributors, and retailers, her practice touches nearly every link in the industry chain. She often acts as outside general counsel to cannabis clients by providing guidance on employment, contractual, real estate, and intellectual property matters as well as assisting with regulatory compliance concerns, including agency and/or government investigations. Priya has successfully litigated the seizure of hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash by the government and successfully negotiated settlements in favor of her clients. She has successfully negotiated favorable settlements in several trademark litigation matters, thereby protecting cannabis brands. Priya has been on the vanguard of the battle against unlicensed cannabis shops and counterfeit cannabis products, sending countless cease and desist letters to protect her clients' brands. In addition to writing articles in the Los Angeles Business Journal and speaking to media outlets such as Law360, the Associated Press, and NBC Los Angeles, she continues to warn state and local governments of the health and financial risks that counterfeit products and unlicensed cannabis shops pose to the public. Business Litigation & Trial Experience In addition to her cannabis expertise, Priya has extensive business litigation and trial experience involving intellectual property, copyright and trade-secret protection, licensing agreements for music and internet/television rights, international film financing and distribution, employer discrimination and sexual harassment, securities litigation, entertainment litigation, wrongful death, and white-collar crime. Priya has won numerous defense verdicts, including a multimillion-dollar employment discrimination suit against a major insurer, and in suits against a successful developer, a noted Hollywood studio, and other high-profile clients.

Featured in Products Liability (USA - Nationwide)

Career: Brian is a go-to first-chair trial lawyer who has tried over 30 cases to verdict before juries across the country, achieving numerous full defense verdicts on behalf of his many clients in some of the most challenging jurisdictions in the country. In recognition of his success, Brian is nationally ranked in Chambers in "Products Liability" and "Mass Torts." Chambers describes Brian as "a tremendous lawyer" who is "instrumental in getting favorable results." Brian is also ranked by Legal 500 for "Toxic Torts," "Consumer Products," and "Sports." In 2023, he was named "Trial Lawyer of the Year" and "Top Product Liability Litigator" by Benchmark Litigation, and led the trial team that received Benchmark's "National Impact Case Award" for the defense verdict secured in Clark v. Monsanto. Brian is also a Benchmark "Top 100 Trial Lawyer" and "Litigation Star," one of Lawdragon's 500 "Leading Lawyers" and "Leading Litigators" in America, and a two-time National Law Journal "Winning Litigator" finalist. Brian serves as national trial counsel for several clients in multi-district litigations around the country, including Monsanto in its Roundup litigation. In that litigation, he delivered the first full defense verdict for Monsanto in the litigation in a Los Angeles Superior Court case involving a boy diagnosed with cancer at age five. Brian has also obtained complete defense verdicts on behalf of Bayer, Eli Lilly, and Pfizer in products liability bellwether trials, including the first state court jury verdict for Bayer in the Xarelto litigation. Brian has also played a critical role in winning cases before trial, including a Daubert and summary judgment victory for Medtronic in hernia mesh litigation in the Central District of California. The Court excluded Plaintiffs' specific causation expert based on Brian's argument and deposition, resulting in summary judgment in favor of Medtronic. Brian continues to represent Medtronic in national products liability litigation concerning its hernia mesh. Before founding Wilkinson Stekloff, Brian previously practiced at Covington and Burling and Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, where he tried multiple cases to verdict. Brian also spent four years as an Assistant Federal Public Defender for the Southern District of Florida, where he obtained full acquittals in nearly one-third of his jury trials at a rate of more than double the national average.

His work entails recognizing, understanding and serving clients' strategic and reputational interests, especially when the political stakes are high. A partner in the Political Law practice, Brian helps clients to organize and achieve their political objectives, and defends them when their activities have drawn unwanted controversy. Campaign Finance Laws and Regulations In the general counseling he provides to companies, trade associations, political parties, candidates, nonprofit organizations and individuals, Brian advises on all aspects of ethics and campaign finance laws. He helps clients to navigate the increasingly complex rules that govern the political process: federal lobbying disclosure laws; Internal Revenue Service rules on political activity; regulatory and judicial responses to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Citizens United v. FEC; and the tangle of federal, state and local laws that political activity often triggers. Brian is one of the nation's leading practitioners before the Federal Election Commission, and he has secured legal protection for high-stakes, high-visibility activities through the FEC's advisory opinion process. His in-depth understanding of that agency allows him to counsel clients on how to organize their fundraising, spending and communications to comply with FEC rules. Brian has successfully defended many clients in FEC audits and investigations, and in civil litigation against the agency. He also helps clients comply with state and local campaign finance laws, and he has appeared before agencies and courts across the country on campaign finance issues. Ethics Investigations Counsel and Leadership Ethics investigations are a significant area of Brian's experience, and he has been quoted in TIME Magazine on the topic of the Congressional ethics process. Brian has successfully represented several members of Congress in ethics investigations before the U.S. House Committee on Ethics, Office of Congressional Ethics and U.S. Senate Select Committee on Ethics. A graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law, Brian appeared before representatives of the Council on Europe's Group of States Against Corruption (GRECO)

when they evaluated the transparency of the U.S. campaign finance system. Brian received recognition in 2014 from Super Lawyers and is an active speaker and participant in panel presentations. He has appeared in programs and classes sponsored by the Council on Governmental and Ethics Laws, George Mason Civil Rights Law Journal, George Mason University School of Law and American University Washington College of Law.

Career: With a successful twenty-five year career in energy law, Andy focuses his practice on representing a diverse range of energy companies in administrative proceedings before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), state regulatory agencies, and federal and state courts. In 2023, Chambers USA stated, "Andy's judgment on strategic issues is excellent, and he can see through complexity to find a balanced approach on issues." He is also recognized for being "very bright, diligent and detail-oriented," proving his thorough approach to understanding complex problems, which enables him to develop effective strategies that achieve results and win cases. Andy represents clients in gas pipeline certificate proceedings and related appeals, as well as electric utilities and regional transmission organizations (RTOs) concerning tariff and rate issues. He also has significant experience representing clients in oil pipeline proceedings under the Interstate Commerce Act. Andy was part of the team that litigated the Trans Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS) rate cases for Anadarko Petroleum Corporation (Anadarko) and Tesoro Alaska Company (Tesoro). The complex, multi-year TAPS proceedings confronted a wide variety of cost-of-service and prudence issues arising from TAPS rates before both FERC and the Regulatory Commission of Alaska, as well as related appeals. These cases resulted in FERC Opinion No. 502 and Opinion No. 544.

Featured in International Arbitration (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: John M. Townsend is a litigation partner in the Washington, D.C., office of Hughes Hubbard & Reed. His practice focuses on complex disputes, particularly international disputes, both in court and before arbitral tribunals. John's arbitration practice includes representing parties in international and domestic commercial arbitration, investment treaty disputes, and acting as an arbitrator. John served as Chair of the Board of Directors of the American Arbitration Association (AAA) from 2007 to 2010 and as chair of the Executive Committee of the AAA from 2004 to 2007. He was a member and a vice president of the Court of Arbitration of the LCIA from 2014 to 2019.

John was the first chair of the Mediation Committee of the International Bar Association (IBA). In February 2008, he was appointed by President George W. Bush as one of the American members of the Panel of Arbitrators of the International Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID), on which he served until 2016. Chambers and Partners has consistently ranked John among the top international arbitration lawyers in the United States and has described him as "just a master," who "understands international ADR better than any other in the market." John served as lead counsel to Canada in Canada's entirely successful defense of two state-to-state arbitrations between the United States and Canada brought under the Softwood Lumber Agreement. He has represented Ukrainian investors in six investment treaty arbitrations against the Russian Federation arising out of its actions in Crimea and has obtained favorable awards on jurisdiction and liability in five; the sixth is still at an early stage. John has served as an arbitrator in more than 100 arbitrations, including commercial and investment treaty cases under all major sets of arbitration rules. John's litigation practice has included participation as a Hughes Hubbard associate in the successful defense of Ford Motor Co. on a charge of negligent homicide in the Pinto fuel tank trial in Indiana, and as a young partner in the defense of the building owner in the Kansas City Skywalk Collapse litigation. He led a Hughes Hubbard team acting as national counsel to a major pharmaceutical manufacturer in a nationwide, multi-defendant litigation challenging the use of published Average Wholesale Prices (AWPs) as a reference point in Medicaid reimbursement. John served as trustee of the US Council for International Business and chaired the Council's European Privilege Task Force. He submitted an application on behalf of the Council to intervene in the Akzo Nobel v. European Commission case in the European Court of Justice to urge European recognition of an attorney-client privilege for company counsel. John is a member of the American Law Institute (ALI) and served as an Advisor to the ALI's Restatement of the U.S. Law of International Commercial and Investor-State Arbitration. He has also served on the Harvard Law School Trial Advocacy Workshop faculty. John has been with Hughes Hubbard & Reed — in New York, Paris, and Washington — since 1971. He speaks fluent French.

Career: Martin T. Tully, Partner at Redgrave LLP, is a nationally recognized attorney whose extensive focus on eDiscovery, information governance, and data privacy and cybersecurity have established him as a force in the information law space. With over three decades of experience, Martin has represented companies and individuals in complex and high-stakes commercial litigation cases, including as lead counsel in federal and state court jury and bench trials and arbitrations. He advises clients on a range of litigation and investigation needs, offering insights into overall discovery strategies. Martin handles all aspects of pre-trial litigation and discovery, including preparation, briefing, and argument of discovery motions, motions to dismiss, motions for summary judgment, preparation of experts for deposition, and taking and defending depositions. With a charismatic and knowledgeable approach, Martin strives to work collaboratively with all stakeholders to navigate a path toward efficient dispute resolution. Martin's litigation experience encompasses a broad spectrum of cases, from catastrophic turbine failures to complex toxic tort class actions. He has secured significant judgments and defended clients in data breach class action lawsuits, wage-fixing antitrust cases, qui tam actions, and more. Martin takes both a tactical and strategic approach to his matters, seeking to understand his clients' past, present, and future legal and business needs and aligning them with the industry and regulatory landscape. He also leverages his profound knowledge of evolving technology, including collaboration tools and artificial intelligence (AI), to drive practical solutions that create value, efficiency, and competitive advantage. Martin also has significant experience counseling clients on information governance programs and best practices. He develops and implements policies and procedures concerning defensible disposition and data minimization strategies and helps clients evaluate retention practices to determine the best approaches to cut costs and reduce risk. With a deep background and understanding of the data privacy landscape, Martin provides clients with holistic information governance recommendations related to evolving data privacy regulations and cybersecurity concerns. As a thought leader in information law, Martin has authored and presented extensively on eDiscovery, information governance, data privacy, cybersecurity, and legal technology. He co-authored the chapter "Electronic Discovery in Civil Litigation" in the American Bar Association Guide for In-House Counsel: Practical Resource to Cutting Edge Issues and contributed to The Sedona Principles, Third Edition Best Practices, Recommendations & Principles for Addressing Electronic Document Production. Chambers USA has consistently recognized Martin as a top lawyer in the field of E-Discovery & Information Governance. Outside of his professional roles, Martin has demonstrated his commitment to community involvement and public service by serving multiple terms as the mayor and a councilmember of his hometown, Downers Grove, Illinois. Practice Areas: Kendal handles domestic and cross-border transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and strategic alliances, as well as licensing, distribution and franchise matters. FRANCHISING With over 30 years of experience, I represent franchisors throughout their business life cycle — from start-up franchise systems to middle-market franchisors and mature, global franchise systems. I also counsel companies expanding through licensing agreements and product distribution arrangements throughout the world. I have extensive experience structuring, negotiating, and enforcing domestic and international franchise, license, distribution, and acquisition agreements. I am a frequent contributor to franchise publications and a frequent speaker at franchise programs held by the American Bar Association's Forum on Franchising, the International Bar Association, and the International Franchise Association. I am the co-editor of International Franchise Sales Laws, a book published by the American Bar Association in February 2023; it is an authoritative yet practical resource to help lawyers navigate international franchise sales laws. I am the executive director of the LexNoir Foundation and serve as an editor and author for the "Franchising In" international book series published by the LexNoir Foundation. My recent books include International Franchising 2016: Legal and Business Considerations, a 600-page publication that covers 41 countries and was a collaboration of over 60 legal practitioners across the globe. REGION FOCUS (AFRICA) I have been appointed to serve in my second term as a member of the Trade Advisory Committee on Africa (TACA), which is a US federal advisory committee that advises the US government on US trade policy in Africa. Franchising has experienced phenomenal growth around the world and Africa is no exception.

The saturation of Western markets, the relaxation of trade barriers and the globalization of business have pushed franchisors to new African markets to distribute their products and services. My franchise practice is at the forefront of this industry trend.

VAN GRACK, Brandon L
Morrison Foerster, Washington, DC
(202) 778-1447
bvangrack@mfo.com
Featured in Political Law (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Brandon L. Van Grack co-chairs Morrison Foerster's National Security and Crisis Management groups. His practice focuses on investigations, criminal defense, and compliance matters involving export controls and sanctions, foreign investment, and cyber incidents. Brandon's arrival to the firm follows more than a decade of service at the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), where he held multiple senior positions. Most recently, he was Chief of DOJ's Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA) Unit, after serving as a lead prosecutor for Special Counsel Robert S. Mueller III's investigation of the Russian government's efforts to interfere in the 2016 presidential election. Brandon's leadership and breadth of national security experience offers clients in the financial services, technology, artificial intelligence, defense, media, and communications sectors unmatched insider enforcement perspective across the entire national security landscape, including sanctions, the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS), export control, cybersecurity matters, and FARA. Investigations & White Collar Defense At the DOJ, Brandon led and supervised some of the government's most notable national security investigations. He served as Senior Assistant Special Counsel for the Special Counsel's Office, handling some of the office's most significant matters. As one of Special Counsel Mueller's top deputies, Brandon led the investigation and prosecution of former National Security Advisory Michael Flynn and was a key member of the trial team that successfully prosecuted Paul Manafort, a former presidential campaign manager. Prior to the appointment of Special Counsel Mueller, Brandon headed the entire Russia investigation. Brandon also managed significant corporate investigations and resolutions across the national security spectrum. As Counsel to the Assistant Attorney General for National Security, and a Trial Attorney in the Counterintelligence & Export Control Section, he worked on the resolution of almost every significant corporate matter pertaining to export control and sanctions violations in the last decade and is one of the few attorneys to have managed the DOJ's Voluntary Self-Disclosure Program for export control and sanctions violations. As Chief of the FARA Unit, he directed scores of investigations of companies for acting as unregistered foreign agents. Sanctions, Export Control, & Foreign Investment As Counsel to the Assistant Attorney General, Brandon oversaw every criminal investigation involving export control and sanctions and led the DOJ's response to the Obama Administration's rollback of sanctions targeting Iran — the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA). As a Trial Attorney, he prosecuted more than 30 export control and sanctions cases, including first-ever cases involving North Korea, weapons of mass destruction, and the Atomic Energy Act. Brandon has also handled the review of transactions before CFIUS and Team Telecom across multiple administrations. During the Obama Administration, he managed the DOJ's review of transactions before CFIUS and, more recently, led DOJ's review of transactions involving foreign influence before CFIUS and Team Telecom. FARA & the Lobbying Disclosure Act As Chief of the FARA Unit, and the first official to supervise all foreign influence matters across the DOJ, Brandon revitalized and transformed the enforcement of FARA. Following the DOJ's announcement making FARA an enforcement priority, he supervised a team of 40 attorneys and staff that opened a record number of investigations, pursued a record number of enforcement actions, secured a record number of registrations, and obtained the first civil injunction involving FARA in nearly three decades. Brandon also directed the review of Lobbying Disclosure Act (LDA) filings for criminal violations and regulated the exemption under FARA for LDA registrants. Currently, he is writing the book on FARA enforcement for the American Bar Association. Cybersecurity As a long-time prosecutor, including as a Special Assistant U.S. Attorney for the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia, Brandon directed complex cyber investigations, including multiple matters involving state-sponsored cyber attacks. He prosecuted the first person convicted as a cyberterrorist and led the investigation of an international hacking group for identity theft, extortion, and dozens of spear-phishing attacks against public and private entities. He also collaborated with other government agencies, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Department of Homeland Security, to facilitate cooperation from corporate victims and disseminate threat information. During his time at the DOJ, Brandon handled the entire range of national security matters. He led and supervised investigations and prosecutions involving espionage, economic espionage, mishandling of classified information, and theft of trade secrets. He also directed investigations involving treason, mutiny, the Neutrality Act, and the Logan Act. Brandon has been widely recognized for his deep experience in handling national security matters, and keynotes and speaks at industry conferences involving export control and sanctions, CFIUS, FARA, and political law. He has received numerous awards for his work, including the Attorney General's Award for Distinguished Service (2018), the FBI Director's Award for Outstanding Cyber Investigation (2017), the Director of National Counterintelligence's Award for Excellence (2019), the Homeland Security Investigations Executive Associate Director's Award for Outstanding Counterproliferation Investigation (2014), and five awards from the Assistant Attorney General for National Security. Brandon regularly provides insight on national security issues and DOJ matters with national media. He is a frequent contributor on cable news, including MSNBC's The Rachel Maddow Show, Deadline: Whitehouse and All In with Chris Hayes, ABC's Good Morning America, NBC's Meet the Press, CNN, BBC News, Sky News and NHK World. He also regularly appears on NPR's Morning Edition. He has been quoted on a variety of national security topics in the Wall Street Journal, New York Times, and Washington Post, among others. Brandon is also a Contributing Editor to the Lawfare blog and co-host of The Regulators podcast, where he speaks with key U.S. government regulators in the national security space, including leaders at OFAC, CFIUS, the Bureau of Industry and Security, DOJ, FinCEN, the Office of Information and Communications Technology and Services (ICTS), and FBI.

Featured in Cannabis Law (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: -Corporate & Business -Government & Policy -Licensing

Career: Vicente LLP Founding

Partner Brian Vicente has been helping marijuana businesses obtain state and local licenses since the inception of the regulated cannabis industry — an industry he has played a significant role in shaping. He has also advised national, state, and local government officials in the development of regulated cannabis markets across the country and around the world, including in Uruguay, the first country in the world to legalize and regulate marijuana for adult use. In late 2018, newly elected Colorado Gov. Jared Polis selected Brian to serve as a member of his gubernatorial transition team, where he sat on the Economic Development and Labor Committee. Brian was a lead drafter of Colorado's historic legalization initiative, Amendment 64, and he co-directed the successful campaign in support of it. He also served as chair of the Committee for Responsible Regulation, which coordinated the successful campaign to implement statewide excise and sales taxes on adult-use marijuana in Colorado. Previously, Brian served as executive director of Sensible Colorado, a leading nonprofit organization advocating for medical marijuana patients and providers in Colorado. During this time, he played an integral role in litigation that opened the door for medical cannabis dispensaries to open in the state, as well as the legislative process that resulted in Colorado becoming the first state to establish a regulated system of medical cannabis production and distribution. Since 2020, Chambers and Partners USA has ranked Brian as one of the top cannabis attorneys in the nation. Additionally, he was recognized by Best Lawyers® from 2021-2024, named a "Cannabis Law Trailblazer" by the National Law Journal in 2018, and has been included in 5280 magazine's list of "Denver's Top Lawyers" every year since 2015. Adding to his impressive list of recognitions, in 2022 he was listed as one of High Times' "Top 100 Influential People in Cannabis" and was recognized as one of Law360's Cannabis MVPs of 2022. Brian has conducted more than 1,000 interviews regarding marijuana policy for national, state, and local media outlets, and he was recognized by The Guardian as "the (cannabis) industry's de facto spokesman." Brian currently serves as president of the National Hispanic Cannabis Council, a purpose-driven nonprofit organization he helped found in 2021. In 2010, Brian was elected as the first board chair of the National Cannabis Industry Association, which now represents nearly 2,000 member businesses and tens of thousands of cannabis professionals. He is also a member of the DanceSafe Advisory Council, and previously served on the boards of Sensible Colorado, the Harm Reduction Action Center, and the SAFER Voter Education Fund. Brian received a full merit scholarship to attend the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, during which time he clerked for outspoken social critic, Senior U.S. District Judge John L. Kane.

With over twenty-five years of experience, Wendy's hard work and dedication to her client's business initiatives has earned her recognition, including being recognized by Chambers USA in 2023 as "very intelligent, experienced and her advice is pragmatic." Her practice focuses on rate regulation, energy market rules and operation, open access transmission and interconnection issues, administrative litigation, mergers and acquisitions, enforcement and compliance, and authorizations, as well as representing clients in transactional and project finance matters. Wendy enjoys the challenge of representing clients in numerous multi-party, litigated proceedings at FERC concerning rates (from both the utility and customer perspectives), open access, energy markets, mergers and acquisitions, and interconnections. She excels at counseling clients on a wide variety of transactional and compliance matters, including advising on regulatory structuring for project finance, negotiating and drafting varied contracts such as power purchase agreements, fuel supply agreements, and development agreements, and representing and advising clients in public and non-public FERC investigations and audits.

Featured in First Amendment Litigation (USA - Nationwide)

Practice Areas: Trial & Appellate Litigation

Career: Board Certified in Civil Trial Law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization, Paul Watler is widely recognized for his work on First Amendment, media law, commercial litigation and "Bet-the-Company" cases. Paul's victories in court range from opening up Love Field in Dallas for long-haul airline service to winning two of the most frequently cited Texas Supreme Court opinions on media libel law. Paul's long-standing success representing media outlets earned him ranking by Chambers USA for First Amendment Litigation (Nationwide) and as the "Go-To Lawyer" for media litigation in the Lone Star State by Texas Lawyer. The Texas Lawbook's "Top Litigation Matters in 2023," listing the nine most significant litigation matters handled by Texas attorneys in 2023, recognized Paul's representation of a bank defendant in a multibillion-dollar claim arising from the R. Allen Stanford's Ponzi scheme. Paul has successfully represented numerous newspapers, television stations, media companies, websites, and journalists in libel, anti-SLAPP (Texas Citizens Participation Act), public information, invasion of privacy, copyright, news gathering, and commercial lawsuits. He argued for a national news media consortium to unseal court records in the Oklahoma City bombing case. Paul's trial experience covers a wide range of complex cases including libel, employment, aviation, healthcare, securities, banking, media, intellectual property, antitrust, oil and gas, and real estate. Well-known for business litigation, Paul was recognized by Lawdragon in 2022 and 2023 as one of the 500 Leading Litigators in America. Paul has won million dollar-plus jury verdicts at trial of plaintiffs and defendants in commercial cases. He has successfully defended business clients against an assortment of claims such as aiding securities violations, knowing participation in fiduciary breach, tortious interference, intentional infliction of emotional distress, Lanham Act claims, unfair competition, false advertising, copyright and trademark infringement, securities fraud, employment discrimination, and wrongful termination. Libel Victory in Texas Supreme Court - The Dallas Morning News was vindicated in the Texas Supreme Court on First Amendment principles against defamation claims arising from a controversial column, "Shrouding suicide leaves its danger unaddressed." The column disclosed that a paid obituary regarding a popular local high school student omitted that the death was a suicide, not the result of injuries sustained in a car accident. In the court's 41-page opinion, Justice Jeff Brown wrote that the column was not actionable because "it is an opinion piece through and through" and was true. Paul led a Jackson Walker LLP team including Shannon Zmud Teicher that defended the case in the trial court and on appeal. Co-counsel for The News in the Supreme Court were Wallace Jefferson and Rachel Ekery of Alexander, Dubose, Jefferson & Townshend.

Featured in eDiscovery (USA – Nationwide)

Practice Areas: eDiscovery

Career: Paul marries technology skills, litigation experience, and deep subject matter knowledge to provide focused guidance on eDiscovery matters. His involvement ranges from providing case and client-specific advice about meeting preservation obligations to addressing initial “meet and confer” obligations. Weiner is well known for bringing cutting-edge solutions to both the technical and legal aspects of eDiscovery. One key trend he has helped lead through litigating cases and his scholarship pertains to the growing availability of personal information through social media, mobile devices, and other avenues. This has leveled the playing field between companies and individuals in previously viewed as “asymmetrical” discovery matters. No longer is most or all pertinent information in a case possessed by large employers, and he has worked to teach that “eDiscovery is a two-way street.” Additionally, Weiner serves as the firm's National eDiscovery Counsel and is the former chair of its Innovation Council.

Career: Beth has served as lead counsel in over 50 jury trials, including numerous bet-the-company, multibillion-dollar cases. She has developed an unrivaled record of victories in federal and state courts throughout the country. Her career has taken Beth from the Army to a leading role in the prosecution of the Oklahoma City bombers to nationally recognized work as a litigation partner at two of the nation's most prominent law firms, and to founding Wilkinson Stekloff. Most recently, Beth was lead trial counsel for Microsoft in the FTC's challenge to Microsoft's $68.7 billion acquisition of Activision — the second-largest merger trial in history and the biggest involving a technology company. She defeated the FTC's request for a preliminary injunction to stop the transaction after a five-day trial that began less than four weeks after the FTC filed its federal court complaint, and directed all aspects of litigation strategy from the time the acquisition was announced in January 2022, positioning the case for a federal court victory on an unprecedented timetable. The American Lawyer named Beth "Litigator of the Week" and described the firm as "the legal equivalent of an elite special ops unit" for leading the successful defense.

Professional Memberships: Beth is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers, a member of American Law Institute (ALI), and a Legal 500 "Leading Trial Lawyer." In 2022, Legal 500 inducted Beth into its Hall of Fame. She has been named The American Lawyer "Litigator of the Year," a Law360 "Trial Ace" and "Trial MVP," a National Law Journal "Winning Litigator" and "General Litigation Trailblazer," and one of Washingtonian's "Most Powerful Women in Washington." In addition, Chambers and Partners has repeatedly named Beth a national "Star Trial Lawyer" and recently honored her for her "Outstanding Contribution to the Legal Profession." Chambers described Beth as "the best trial lawyer there is," a "superstar," and a "lion at the bar," noting her "supreme advocacy" and "unparalleled experience acting as lead trial counsel." Beth has also been chosen for Benchmark Litigation's elite group of the 10 leading women litigators who stand out from its iconic "Top 250 Women in Litigation" list, as well as the "Top 100 Trial Lawyers," and has been recognized by Benchmark as a "Litigation Star." She has also appeared on Lawdragon's "500 Leading Lawyers in America" and "500 Leading Litigators in America" lists, and the Daily Journal's "National Leading Litigators" list.

His diverse experience includes serving as lead counsel in high-stakes international disputes involving a wide range of claims cutting across several industries, including energy, aerospace, defense and government contracts, mining, infrastructure, life sciences, technology, crypto, financial services, and more. Greg's matters are frequently multifaceted, with parallel or related proceedings in multiple fora. For example, Greg represented a publicly traded clean energy company in a wide-ranging, $1+ billion dispute with an Asian energy company arising from licensing agreements. The matter involved three arbitrations seated in Korea, ICC arbitrations seated in London and Singapore, a books-and-records demand in Delaware Chancery Court, and a securities claim in the Southern District of New York. The disputes ultimately settled very favorably, confirming the exclusive rights of Greg's client to its intellectual property world-wide and dismissing all claims against his client with prejudice and without compensation. Greg similarly represented a global defense contractor in a dispute with the South Korean government relating to an upgrade of Korea's fleet of F-16 fighter jets. He obtained summary judgment in a U.S. suit declaring that Korea's claims impermissibly undermined U.S. national security interests. In so doing, he obtained the first-ever foreign anti-suit injunction against a foreign sovereign in the history of U.S. jurisprudence. Further, he convinced the Fourth Circuit to affirm the district court's decision, despite an amicus brief by the Executive Branch challenging the global defense contractor's national security arguments. Greg advised the contractor with respect to the parallel Korean suit. The Korean Supreme Court recently affirmed the global defense contractor's victory in that action as well.

He is also a founding member of Latham's Global Digital Assets & Web3 Practice. A leader of two Latham practices ranked Band 1 nationwide in Chambers (Derivatives and Fintech/Crypto-Asset Disputes), Mr. Yatter advises clients across the financial services and fintech industries and the energy and agricultural sectors in government and internal investigations, litigation, and regulatory matters. As a former Chief Trial Attorney in the Division of Enforcement of the US Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC), Mr. Yatter's experience with commodities regulation enables him to assist large financial institutions, commodity trading firms, energy companies, fintech ventures, and other clients in navigating a complex and rapidly developing regulatory and enforcement environment. He also draws on his experience to represent clients in class actions and other litigation involving financial instruments and market conduct. At the CFTC, Mr. Yatter was a leader of two of the agency's highest profile enforcement matters, including both the ISDAFIX benchmark investigation and the investigation of the collapse of MF Global. He also conducted and supervised various other matters involving violations of the Commodity Exchange Act and CFTC regulations, including fraud, manipulation, false reporting, spoofing, trade practice abuses, customer protection, insider trading, and cybersecurity. His work addressed swaps, futures, and other derivatives across various markets, often in coordination with the Department of Justice (DOJ), the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the National Futures Association (NFA), and other domestic and international authorities. In all, his cases resulted in orders for sanctions totaling nearly US$1.6 billion. In addition to traditional commodities, Mr. Yatter advises cryptocurrency clients on a range of compliance, litigation, and enforcement matters at the forefront of regulatory developments involving digital assets and blockchain technology. His recent cryptocurrency matters have included investigations by the CFTC, SEC, and Department of Justice on regulatory compliance for token offerings, centralized and decentralized trading platforms, insider trading, money laundering, and market manipulation. In his extensive civil litigation practice, Mr. Yatter represents clients in federal and state courts and arbitration proceedings in a wide array of complex matters, including securities and shareholder derivative suits, antitrust cases, and transactional disputes. Mr. Yatter serves on the Advisory Board of NYU School of Law's Program on Corporate Compliance & Enforcement and the Board of Directors of the Fund for Modern Courts. He is a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation and a member of the ABA Derivatives & Futures Law Committee and the Futures Industry Association Law & Compliance Division. Early in his career, he clerked for Judge Dennis Jacobs of the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Mr. Yatter is a frequent speaker on enforcement topics and industry trends, including cryptocurrencies, artificial intelligence, and other areas of innovation.
